Dr. Austin Sellery to Head Palm Springs HS

By PEYTON CANARY
Sun Staff Writer

Dr. Austin R. Sellery, 37, became the second educator to be authorized as Palm Springs High School principal for 1961-2, when the Board of Education here passed a unanimous resolution hiring him Thursday night.

Sellery, assistant principal in charge of pupil personnel in Roseda's Cleveland High School, is expected to report for his $12,686 post sometime this month. The school reopens Sept. 13.

The board had offered the job to Dr. Donald R. McKinley, Davis principal, at the July 20 meeting, on the recommendation of District Superintendent Dr. Dwight E. Twist. McKinley subsequently declined the job, after making a tentative acceptance in a prolonged two-hour post-meeting session.

Sellery, a World War II infantry first lieutenant and prisoner of war in Europe, with service in Japan during the Korean War, obtained his doctorate in education from UCLA in June, 1960. He is married and has four children.

No area citizens appeared for the public hearing on the district's $2,738,457 operating budget for the coming year, or the $2,239,589.38 building bond budget. Two residents of the Whitewater area appeared to request inclusion in the Palm Springs Unified School District, rather than the Banning district which had been proposed by the county advisory committee on school districts.

The committee had also proposed some of incorporated Palm Springs be transferred to Banning's district, apparently to up assessed valuations there, Dr. Twist reported. At board direction, Twist will have a presentation on the matter for the Sept. 14 meeting.

COOLEY RUSHED FROM JAIL TO HOSPITAL

BAKERSFIELD (UPI)—Former western musician Donnell (Spade) Cooley was rushed from jail to a hospital today shortly before his murder trial was scheduled to resume in Superior Court.

Defense Atty. P. Basil Lambros was called to the jail while Cooley was in a dressing area. He said Cooley looked ill and complained of pains in his left arm and chest.

"He insisted that they let him go to the trial and get it over with," said Lambros.

Cooley, who had suffered from a heart ailment for several years, had been placed under treatment several times since his arrest. He was taken to the emergency ward at Kern General Hospital.

Lambros said Thursday that he will call Cooley to the stand Monday or Tuesday to testify in his behalf. The 50-year-old former "King of western swing" is charged with the torture slaying of his wife, Ella Mae, 37, at the couple's ranch home April 3.

Cooley has pleaded innocent and innocent by reason of insanity.

Lambros Thursday called in the second doctor to appear at the trial, Los Angeles pathologist Dr. Richard O. Myers. Myers testified some fractures suffered by Mrs. Cooley occurred after her death.

The doctor agreed with previous testimony by Kern County Pathologist Dr. Robert Huntington that a ruptured aorta suffered by the victim could have caused death within 12 hours. He also said she could have ruptured the aorta in a fainting fall in the shower.

Dr. Myers also testified he does not believe the injuries in Mrs. Cooley's stomach could be caused by one stomp of a boot, as had been testified by prosecution witnesses.

Hostesses With Mostess Stir East-West Tiff

LONDON (UPI)—Five hundred women scorned complained Thursday night that Oriental girls are charming them out of a job.

The women, all stewardesses aboard British Overseas Airways Corp. planes, said the Eastern charmers—also stewardesses—are unfair competition because:

—They are allowed to wear colored nail polish.
—They may wear earrings.
—Worst—or best—of all, they wear skirts well above the knee on the job.

BOAC has allowed the Oriental stewardesses, hired recently, to wear the more exotic uniforms because it's part of their national costume. But the English girls said the split skirts and all the rest of it give the Asians an unfair advantage.

Indio's Police Chief Pat Cunningham Will Retire

INDIO — Veteran police chief Patrick H. Cunningham has announced his Sept. 30 retirement to the Indio City Council.

Cunningham, who joined a three-man force in 1941 and became chief in 1942, told The Desert Sun he had not made definite retirement plans. The 25-year veteran of law enforcement added: "I'll probably stick close to law work. You can't just walk away from it after 25 years."

Assistant chief and investigation department head Capt. Homer Hunt is expected to succeed Cunningham, but the retiring officer emphasized he had made no recommendations for his successor. "That's not my job," he said.

Reds Reject Protest on Berliners

East Germany
Termed 'Sovereign
State' by Russian

BERLIN (UPI)—The Soviets today rejected a Big Three Western protest against East German Communist interference with the free movement of Germans in Berlin.

A Soviet embassy spokesman said East Germany was a "sovereign" state and could take the steps it thought necessary. He told a news conference that the Soviet commandant in Berlin would not intervene.

Informed sources reported earlier that East German Communist leader Walter Ulbricht had asked Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev for permission to seal the East-West Berlin border against the flight of refugees.

The Western Allies Thursday protested Communist restrictions on movement within the city as a violation of the 1949 agreement which ended the Soviet blockade of the city. They called on the Soviet commandant to take action to end the discriminations without delay.

The report of Ulbricht's appeal to Khrushchev could not be confirmed.

The sources said Ulbricht made a secret flight to Moscow to tell Khrushchev that an immediate settlement of the Berlin problems was necessary.

The sources said they did not know Khrushchev's answer but believed he recommended caution until possible East-West talks on Berlin take place.

Despite the lack of official confirmation, weight was given to the report by the fact that Ulbricht was absent from East Berlin early this week.

Delayed Concert Slated Saturday

DESERT HOT SPRINGS—The Desert Hot Springs concert in Banning's Replier Park was postponed on account of rain Thursday night, but rescheduled for 8 p.m. Saturday.

Organist John Ledwon will play from the Replier Bowl bandshell for the event — if Thursday's scattered rainfall doesn't return.

Rebels Give Up

JAKARTA, Indonesia (UPI)—The Indonesian army announced Thursday that 1,900 rebels surrendered Saturday at Kwalasimpang in north Sumatra.

Chief Cunningham served approximately 17 years with the Indio Police Department. He spent portions of 1944 and 1945 with the U. S. Customs office, as a special investigator for the county district attorney, and the sheriff's department, plus private business.

$46.8 Billion For Arms Wins Unanimous Okay

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Senate today unanimously approved the biggest peacetime military spending bill in history — $46.8 billion.

The vote was 85-0.

The huge defense money bill carried all of the extra $3.5 billion which President Kennedy asked for only last week to strengthen the nation's non-nuclear forces and to counter Communist threats to Berlin.

The action came during the second day of debate after the Senate first repulsed, 47-37, a GOP-backed attempt to tack on to the bill federal aid to impacted school districts.

Also rejected was an amendment by Sen. Stephen M. Young, D-Ohio, to eliminate $207.6 million in civil defense funds to implement the President's minimal program of providing protection for civilians against surprise nuclear attack.

The bill, largest military spending measure since wartime 1945, included funds for more manned bombers; to increase the Army, Navy, Marine and Air Force manpower by 250,000 men; and to build more ships, tanks and weapons.

Sen. A. Willis Robertson, D-Va., floor manager for the bill, said it provided for a balanced buildup of both nuclear and conventional forces to meet Communist pressures at world danger spots.

He said it stood as a "warning to the forces of aggression that we are willing to negotiate through strength."

Young's amendment was defeated by a voice vote. A compromise attempt to cut civil defense outlays to $100 million, offered by Sen. Frank J. Lausche, D-Ohio, also was turned down on a voice vote.

Sen. Karl E. Mundt, S.D., and other Republicans offered the amendment to write into the defense money measure a provision for aid to schools whose enrollments are swollen by children of federal employes.

Sen. Wayne Morse, D-Ore., objected that it was an attempt to graft general legislation onto an appropriation bill and was out of order.

This forced Mundt to seek to suspend the rules to bring the matter up, requiring a two-thirds vote. It was the second time a similar GOP move had failed this week.

Caretaker Hurt In Assault by Housebreaker

A 30-year-old Palm Springs caretaker was treated for a small laceration of the chin after he was assaulted by an intruder at the Gar Moore residence, 1451 Paseo de Anza, early this morning.

Harry Pender of Banning said he arrived at the actor's residence to start his daily chores and the assailant grabbed him from the rear, holding a straight razor at his throat. The suspect ordered him to turn on the lights of the room and then asked him to give him the keys to the upstairs of the home.

Pender said he didn't have the keys, and broke away from the razor-wielding suspect and ran to the phone to call the police. The suspect fled from the home.

Pender said that because the suspect was behind him he could only describe him as male, white and about six feet tall.

Russians Say U.S. Vessel Rammed Tanker

LONDON (UPI)—A Soviet newspaper charged today that an American ship rammed and seriously damaged a Soviet tanker bound for Cuba with a shipment of oil.

Trud, the newspaper of the Central Soviet Trade Union Council, said the incident occurred Thursday near the Straits of Gibraltar and implied that the American ship deliberately rammed the Russian tanker. The tanker also was named Trud.

The newspaper account, as carried by the official Soviet news agency Tass, first identified the American ship as the Janet Queen and said she was sailing "at high speed, clumsily infringing the rules of the sea" in a fog. Tass later identified the American ship as the Jeanette Queen.

Lloyd's registry in London said that an American vessel called the Janet Quinn was in Gibraltar waters Thursday and it probably was the ship Tass referred to. Lloyd's said the 441-foot, 7,233-ton Janet Quinn was registered in New York to Long, Quinn and Boylan Co.

"The captain of the Soviet ship gave the immediate order to put the ship into reverse and stop the engines," Trud said. "In spite of this the U.S. vessel kept its course and after ramming the Soviet tanker tried to disappear."

The newspaper said the tanker sprang a big leak but it gave no further details.

Fear Tourist Bus Will Sink

LUZERN, Switzerland (UPI)—Swiss officials feared today that a bus with the bodies of 15 Americans at the bottom of Lake Lucerne would sink deeper in the thick, black mud during salvage operations.

The bus loaded with 38 persons—35 of them American tourists—plunged from a mountain road into the lake Wednesday. Twenty-two persons managed to get out before the bus sank, but 15 Americans—mostly women—were entombed. One other body was recovered shortly after the accident.

Austrian diver Siegfried Naumann, who spent 90 minutes underwater inspecting the bus, reported that the wreck was stuck in sludge.

What does the Palm Springs postmaster say to criticism on the local and national level of postal service? . . . What will happen in the resort area should nuclear bombs fall on the United States? Vital articles in two Desert Sun series, one beginning and one ending today, should be read by every thinking adult, this newspaper feels, for the personal benefit to be gained by their information.

Operational efficiency of the U. S. Post Office is endorsed by Palm Springs Postmaster Merritt Williams in the closing article of a nine-part series on postal service. See Page 10.

The alarm was also answered by trucks from Forestry Fire Stations in Cathedral City, Palm Desert and Indio as well as a patrol supervisor from Indio.

News in Brief

LOUISVILLE, Ill. (UPI)—More than 130 FBI agents and state police swarmed into an embattled estate behind a gate-busting Army half track today and arrested an AWOL marine and the leader of an anti-Communist religious sect who had given him refuge.

The 109 state troopers and 25 FBI agents invaded the 100-acre estate of mausoleum tycoon John R. Harrell just before dawn. Despite Harrell's threat to fight to the death to protect Marine Dion Davis, no shots were fired.

PARIS (UPI)—Secretary of State Dean Rusk arrived today for talks on the Berlin crisis and prepared for quick consultations with the other Western foreign ministers over Russia's renewed threat to sign a separate peace treaty with Communist East Germany.

Rusk told newsmen at Orly Airport he would not comment on the Soviet notes on Berlin until he had conferred with the British, French and West German foreign ministers. The texts of the notes to the United States, Britain and France were broadcast minutes after Rusk's plane set down.

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Sen. Estes Kefauver said today it was a "helluva thing" for drug manufacturers not to send pharmacists the full details of side effects that may injure and even kill drug users.

The Tennessee Democrat, chairman of Senate subcommittee that has been investigating the drug industry for months, commented on disclosures that a "sizeable proportion of drug makers do not send 'package inserts' to druggists and hospitals.

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Senate Foreign Relations Committee approved legislation today to set up President Kennedy's Peace Corps and to authorize $40 million to finance it for the first year.

The vote was 14 to 0. The committee rejected, 11 to 6, a move by Sen. Bourke B. Hickenlooper, R-Iowa, to cut the funds to $25 million for the first year.

WASHINGTON (UPI)—High State Department officials have recommended that President Kennedy invoke the "trading with the enemy act" to cut off the remaining trickle of U.S.-Cuban trade, sources said today.

The move would be retaliation against Cuban Premier Fidel Castro's failure to do as much as reply to the U.S. demand that he return a hijacked Eastern Air Lines plane.

Storm's Fringe Brings Showers To Palm Springs

The fringes of a violent wind and rain storm that struck Indio and cut off electric power in that community for more than an hour hit Palm Springs last night.

A trace of rain, winds up to 50 miles an hour and blinding sand were reported here.

California Highway Patrol officers said the storm moved into the Coachella Valley from the south and struck Indio at 8:12 p.m. A power line was blown down, resulting in a power failure over a square mile-wide area.

In Palm Springs lights were dimmed for a second or two. Chief effect of the storm here was the pall of sand which obscured visibility for up to an hour.

Imperial Hit

BRAWLEY (UPI)—A sand and thunderstorm struck the Imperial Valley Thursday night, uprooting trees and breaking power lines, authorities reported.

At least one home was damaged in the severe storm. A large tree fell on the Juan Antunez home two miles east of here, forcing the Antunez family of 10 to spend the night with neighbors.

There was only slight precipitation accompanying the summer storm.

School Faces $150,000 Injury Suit

Notice of intent to file claim for $150,000 personal injury damages for Waldene Smith, Palm Springs High School 1960 junior injured in a school chemistry laboratory explosion at approximately 1:30 p.m. on Oct. 18, 1960, was received by the district school board Thursday evening in a letter from the law firm of Simon and Simon.

Miss Smith, then 16 years old, received permanent injury in one eye which will impair her vision, the letter said. In addition, some permanent disfigurement is involved, the notice reported.

Miss Smith was one of five students injured in the chemistry class when a heated mixture of red phosphorus and magnesium dioxide exploded. The mixture had been made by the five students after a two-day preparation period, it was reported last October. Miss Smith returned to school after eye surgery here.

YOUNG, SWAGGERING KENNEDY DISAPPEARS

WASHINGTON (UPI) — "As I God love you, the weight of the world . . ."

This was in a letter written by a woman on Cape Cod, where President Kennedy has spent many of his happiest moments.

It was one of about 20,000 messages Kennedy has received since his radio-TV appeal for "your help . . . your suggestions . . . and above all, your prayers" in helping to meet the Berlin crisis.

President Won In No-Blackmail Plane Gamble

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Kennedy gambled and won in directing federal agencies to hold a hijacked jet airliner on the ground at El Paso, Tex., and reject deals with "thieves and kidnapers."

That is how Federal Aviation Administrator Najeeb Halaby pictured Kennedy's role in the successful effort to block the flight of a $3 million plane to Fidel Castro's Cuba.

Details of the plane seizure flowed into the White House Thursday as if it were a battlefield command post. Halaby said Kennedy made the crucial decision himself after consulting his top aides.

Halaby said the gunmen's proposal to swap the jet for a DC-7 and free the hostages in return for a safe-conduct flight to Havana was seriously considered at one point. But Kennedy vetoed the idea.

"The President directed that we not let that airplane leave the ground and not make any deal with thieves or kidnapers," the FAA chief said.

HIJACKERS SOUGHT WEALTH IN CUBA

(EDITOR'S NOTE—Why did an Arizona ex-convict and his 16-year-old son hijack a $5 million airliner and try to make the pilot fly to Fidel Castro's Cuba? UPI reporters William C. Payette and Charles E. Webb looked for the answer, in the aftermath of Thursday's sensational airliner pirating. By UPI Special Reporting Team Here is their report.)

EL PASO, Tex. (UPI)—A federal official said today that Leon Bearden and his 16-year-old son, Cody, hijacked a $5 million jet airliner with the apparent intention of taking it to Havana, selling it to Fidel Castro's government and living like kings on the proceeds.

The federal official is U.S. Commissioner Henry C. Clifton, who set $100,000 bond for Bearden, 38, and his son late Thursday on federal charges of kidnapping and flying a stolen plane across state lines.

"All we, the FBI or anyone else could get out of them was that they wanted to go to Cuba and take the plane and sell it," Clifton said.

Was there already a prearranged deal with the Castro government to buy the plane?

Clifton did not know, but he pointed out that the FBI noted that Bearden, an ex-convict on parole, contacted the Cuban Embassy in Mexico City last January and indicated he wanted to go to Cuba.

The Beardens—the son armed with a 45-caliber automatic and the father with a 38-caliber revolver—seized the Continental Airlines Boeing 707 jet early Thursday on the Phoenix-El Paso leg of a Los Angeles to Houston, Tex., flight.

There were 67 passengers—including the hijackers—and a crew of six on board. Everyone aboard believed at first the hijackers were Cubans.

When they landed at El Paso on the pilot's plea that he had to refuel to get to Cuba, the Bearden let all of the passengers except four go. They kept the four passengers—who volunteered to stay behind—and six crew members hostages.

They ordered the pilot to take off after the plane's tanks were filled. FBI agents and border patrolmen, acting on President Kennedy's orders, chased the taxiing plane in squad cars and shot out the tires and one engine with submachineguns and rifles.

Finally, after more than nine hours, Leonard Gilman, assistant regional commissioner of the Immigration Service, slugged the elder Bearden. It laid Bearden's jaw open and broke Gilman's finger. An FBI man and a border patrolman subdued the son.

R. Ewing Thomason, federal judge of the Western District of Texas, plans to talk to U.S. Atty. Ernest Morgan of San Antonio, Tex., today about calling a special grand jury into session.

"We haven't decided yet, but I believe it's safe to say I'll call a grand jury next week," Thomason said. "If I do, the trial will probably be held next month."

The maximum penalty on conviction under a federal kidnapping charge is death under the "Lindbergh Law" but the death penalty only applies if the victims are harmed.

The Bearden threatened their hostages with death. They held a gun to the head of one of the two hostages and to the head of the pilot, Capt. B. D. Rickards.

But the only injury happened when one of the hostesses was cut by flying glass when the FBI and Border Patrol opened fire to stop the plane from taking off.

Bearden, a roofer by trade who had been working as a used car salesman in Chandler, Ariz., was sullen before Clifton. His son acted like it was all part of a great adventure.

"Well, did you do it or didn't you?" asked the commissioner. "They caught you red-handed." "Obviously," Bearden muttered in a low voice.

They stood silent, refusing to enter a plea. A representative of the U.S. attorney's office said he would consider both were pleading innocent and father and son were marched off to separate jail cells.

Japanese Police Gear For New Anti-Cop Attack

OSAKA (UPI) — Police headquarters announced today they would muster 6,000 policemen to fight for another expected assault from police-hating dwellers in the city's notorious Kamagasaki slum district.

A total of 6,000 helmeted police clashed with 3,000 rioters for the third consecutive night Thursday night. Police said a total of 196 persons, including 143 policemen, 4 newsmen and 49 rioters were injured. Fifteen alleged leaders were arrested.

Long smoldering antagonism among the slum dwellers against police exploded four nights ago when they complained that the police were too slow in investigating a traffic accident in which a 62-year-old man was killed by a speeding taxi.

The mob became infuriated when a police officer allegedly allowed the body of the victim to lie on the sidewalk despite pleas by bystanders that the man be rushed to a hospital while the accident was being investigated. The mob then began rioting.

A police spokesman said the policemen would be instructed to be careful in using their clubs, if necessary.

CLANNERS OFF TO RIVIERA

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Frank Sinatra, Dean Martin and Sammy Davis Jr., three members of the Hollywood band known as the Clan, flew out of Los Angeles Thursday night bound for London and eventually a visit to the French Riviera with the father of President Kennedy.

Also along, according to an airlines spokesman, was Mike Romonoff, owner of a swank Beverly Hills eatery.

Davis is scheduled for a long theater booking in London and the entire Europe-bound group is expected to be at his opening to take part, as has been their custom in

Bermuda Dunes P.O. Planned in September

WASHINGTON — A rural postal station will be established at the community of Bermuda Dunes early in September, Congressman D. S. Saund announced today.

In behalf of residents of the area, the 29th District representative had made an urgent request to the Post Office Department to initiate a survey of the need for an independent postal installation at the new resort community near Indio. At the present time, the approximately 100 homes and 53 cooperative apartments which surround the proposed business district are a part of Rural Route 1 from Indio.

Assistant Postmaster General Frederick C. Belen, in charge of the Rural Appointments and Post Office Changes Division, wrote Saund:

"Since there is insufficient postal business to be generated to warrant the expense of establishing an independent post office and to provide a stationary postal facility for the convenience of the residents and the future business area, we are planning to establish a rural station in the future business area about Sept. 1, 1961 if service arrangements can be resolved by then."

Mail deposited in the new Bermuda Dunes postal facility will be postmarked with an indicia which will include the community name "Bermuda Dunes." A collection box will be installed in front of the postal facility and a late afternoon collection will be provided by the Indio post Office.

"I will be keeping close contact with the residents of Bermuda Dunes and as the community grows, I will take appropriate action to insure that the Post Office Department further expands its service," Saund declared.

Las Vegas May Summon State Militia Forces

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI)—Officials in this desert gambling city today said they may call for the state militia to halt increasing violence in the four-day old taxi driver strike.

Since 325 teamsters union drivers walked off their jobs at midnight Tuesday there have been four incidents of violence between union and nonunion drivers. Anticipated trouble Thursday night was held down by doubling the night patrols of the police force, but authorities said gang attacks might get worse.

A spokesman for the city, who asked to remain unidentified, said the strike "was the largest and worst tieup in Las Vegas in two decades."

Britain's 'Splendid Isolation' End Seen

LONDON (UPI) — Overwhelming approval by the House of Commons gave Prime Minister Harold Macmillan's government the power today to end Britain's "splendid isolation" and move to join the European common market.

Commons voted 313 to 5 Thursday night in favor of a motion to seek membership in the economic community. The vote climaxed two days of debate highlighted by Macmillan's plea to cast aside Britain's traditional policy of avoiding alliances with the continent.

Britain's formal application was expected to be submitted early next week. It was believed the move would be made in a personal communication either from Macmillan or Foreign Secretary Lord Home to German Minister of Economics Ludwig Erhard.

Seek Tariff Elimination
Erhard is chairman of the council of ministers of the European Economic Community, which seeks to eliminate tariffs among West Germany, France, Italy, Belgium, Luxembourg and the Netherlands by 1970.

Commons approved negotiations to safeguard the special interests of the Commonwealth and the seven-nation European Free Trade Association if Britain joins the EEC. Formal talks are expected to begin this October.

It reserved the right to approve arrangements after Commonwealth representatives are consulted.

EFTA Countries To Follow
Originally, Britain helped set up EFTA as a rival organization to the common market. But most EFTA countries have announced their intention seek EEC membership and all were expected to follow Britain's negotiations with interest.

Negotiations are expected to be long and tough. However, they eventually could lead to fulfillment of the centuries-old dream for a United States of Europe.

If the common market absorbed EFTA, including Britain, an all-European trade bloc of 300 million persons—larger than either the United States or the Soviet Union—would be formed.

Other Entries Lose to Winner

TONAWANDA, N. Y. (UPI) — A duck owned by David Lazar earned the title of "happiest pet" Thursday at a playground pet show. Then he demonstrated that he also was the "hungriest."

As the peis lined up for awards, the duck broke loose from its master and gobbled up a frog, two worms and a cricket.

All the victims were contestants.

Marine in 'Fortress'

FIGHT DUE AS AWOL, PROTECTOR STAND OFF FBI

LOUISVILLE, Ill. (UPI) — An AWOL reluctant Marine inside a heavily guarded rural estate nestled secure today in his wealthy protector's assurance of divine aid against federal captors.

Dion Davis, 19-year-old would-be missionary who said the Marines "teach men to hate," Thursday rejected an FBI plea to surrender and take his chance on a discharge under "ordinary processes of the law."

Davis muttered "I refuse" and turned back from the dramatic 40-minute parley at the gate to the guarded 100-acre estate of John R. Harrell, mausoleum builder and founder-patron of an anti-Communist, "Christian Conservative Church."

FBI Agent-in-charge Robert

Gibbons of Springfield, Ill., would not say how the FBI will obtain Davis' surrender. But he told the Greenville, Pa., youth his refusal "could lead to something that might mean your life or my life or the lives of those people across the street."

Flees Camp

The youth fled Camp LeJeune, N.C., four months ago and said the Marines flaunt "sin in your face," condone atheism and teach men to be killers. He took refuge or Harrell's estate three weeks ago and Harrell told newsmen of his whereabouts Tuesday.

Harrell, former Methodist Sunday School superintendent and World War II pilot, vowed that sectarian followers whom he supports and houses on his estate would resist any attempt to take Davis by force. Davis was free to leave voluntarily, however.

Harrell backed up his threat by arming guards in 40-foot towers with Mausers and sidearms. He said he has "thousands" of rounds of ammunition and "enough supplies to last for weeks."

Claims Divine Aid
Harrell said Divine instructions for his every move included tactics. "The Lord has told us not to stoop down, not even while reloading," he said. "Love is the thing that makes the greatest fighter of all — love of God and love of country."

"But we don't want to harm them and I don't believe they want to shoot us."

Domestic Date Industry Protective Bill Succeeds

WASHINGTON — Climaxing a five-day struggle by Rep. D. S. Saund, 29th District, Congress Thursday voted protection from foreign imports for the domestic date industry.

The action came as part of the major farm bill which won final approval in both the House and Senate.

Conferees from both houses reached agreement on a final version of the bill at 1:30 a.m. Thursday after six hours of give and take. The House approved the compromise first by a vote of 224 to 174. The Senate concurred by voice vote.

One of the major provisions of the legislation specifies that imported dates will be subject to the same quality, size and grade requirements that domestic dates must be, except for those imports which will be used in manufacturing cookies, candy, cake mixes and similar industrial uses.

Commenting on the successful conclusion of his uphill fight, Congressman Saund said:

"This proposal had been opposed by the Department of State, Department of Commerce and the Department of Health, Education and Welfare in both the Kennedy and Eisenhower administrations.

Boys' Clubs to Salute Hoover on 87th Birthday

Members of the Boys' Club of Palm Springs will join thousands of other Boys' Clubs throughout the country in commemorating the 87th birthday of former president Herbert Hoover, it was announced today by executive director, Ray Lockwood.

Hoover, who will reach the 87-year-old mark on Aug. 10, has for 25 years actively served as board chairman of the Boys' Clubs of America. He describes the national youth-guidance organization as being "after the home, church and school, the greatest character building institution in our country today."

It has become traditional for Boys' Club members to send Mr. Hoover birthday greetings. Many clubs send ingenious cards, presents made by club members, and a wide variety of other mementoes. Hoover always describes these as being among his "most cherished" gifts.

While commenting on the birthday plans, Lockwood emphasized the great progress made by the Boys' Club movement under Hoover's leadership. "The number of clubs and members has more than quadrupled and there are now more than 590 Boys' Clubs of America in some 400 communities providing daily professional guidance and supervised recreation to over 600,000 youngsters. Much of this growth is due directly to Mr. Hoover's efforts and we are happy to have this chance to thank him and wish him well," he said.

Palm Springs Co-Ed Finds Japan Isn't Very Different From U.S.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Marilyn Barrick, 20-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Murray L. Barrick, 1237 S. Riverside Dr., and a Junior at San Jose State College, is in Japan for six weeks with two other Palm Spring's students on a Lions Club exchange program. She is living with a Japanese family in the port of Kobe. In this article she comments on her experiences and impressions.

By MARLYN BARRICK

Maybe you have heard that Japan is one of the countries where life is completely different from our life. In many ways this is true but in other ways it is not.

We found that the cities are much like our own. There are many large department stores, large office buildings, large hotels. In fact, walking down the street in downtown Kobe, we feel quite at home.

Every now and then one sees a woman in a kimono, but this is the exception rather than the rule. It is seldom that you find a man in Japanese dress, but often the men will wear getas—a wooden sandal raised off the ground by two pieces of wood.

We have noticed that the style for women this year in Japan is a box-like suit made of an eyelet type of material only dark and a bit heavier. The skirts are straight and the jacket ends at the hip.

Of course, everywhere there are people, people, people. While trying to get on a bus the other day I think I could have jumped up and been carried in the way by the mass of little people about it without even touching the ground.

I stand about 5 feet, 5 inches, and I have never felt especially tall. However, here I feel like a woman-giant. The other day a Japanese boy asked me if I could be considered average height in America . . . and I think the most embarrassing thing I have to do here is leave my shoes out with those belonging to the rest of my Japanese family. One thing for sure, they are easy to spot in a hurry.

Out in the country it looks more like what you might expect Japan to look like. Even though it is summer here and terribly hot, everything is as green as can be. Farming here cannot be called farming, but should be called gardening. The farmers have just a small piece of land to care for and the fields are laid out in little patches of many kinds.

Since the gardening is done so carefully, it is a beautiful thing to see. Also, there is never any vast area of planted fields like we see at home. Scattered all around are bunches of houses all packed together. I think they could be considered a type of village.

The houses are not especially Japanese-looking from the outside except those with straw or grass roofs. However, as you drive by you can see inside some of these homes and they are very plain with the main part of the house built up about a foot from the entrance and covered with matting.

Here in my family's home in Kobe I can look out over all of the city and right below us are many typical Japanese homes—unpainted wood, tile roofs, very close together, and somewhat dirty. There is also always laundry flying from the bamboo poles at every house, a sight seen anywhere you go in Japan.

We eat mainly Western food here. In fact, the first meal we had here in Japan at a hotel in Yokohama was an American club sandwich! We have had Japanese food for dinner here at my home, but I have a feeling that it is mainly for my benefit. Japanese food is harder to prepare than Western because it is always beautiful to look at as well as interesting and good to eat.

Sugar In Tea?

The Japanese are very fond of sweets. I can remember when I was young and going to either a Japanese or Chinese restaurant with my parents, I would always want to put sugar in my tea. My parents thought this was awful and said that when you eat foreign food you should eat it as it is supposed to be eaten—in other words, drink my tea straight!

Well, I have learned to enjoy tea without sugar and my Japanese family can't understand this. They put so much sugar in their tea and coffee that it won't all dissolve. They even put sugar in an already sweet bottled orange drink, similar to what we can get at home. Everywhere we go, people do the same.

Last Saturday we got up at 5:30 a.m. to attend the launching of a 46,000-ton tanker called the Oswego Defender. Kobe handles two thirds of Japan's total imports and exports.

After the launching we took a complete, and I do mean complete, tour of the ship yards where this ship and others similar to it are built. There are huge buildings and we went to every building and saw everything there was to see.

I guess to an engineer this would be very fascinating, but all that I recognized during the entire visit was a piston. The people here in Kobe are terribly proud of these ship yards that can produce a ship in two and a half months as a result of a new process that they developed.

After our long and extensive tour we went to a lecture hall and saw a hour-and-a-half movie on what we had just seen. After this we took a bus ride to the rolling stock, alias train, factory.

Flower Posing

Later in the afternoon Jo Jo Rosin and I went with Murako, the girl in my family, to her flower arrangement and tea ceremony class. Jo Jo and I made an attempt at arranging flowers. Both of ours looked pretty good . . . after the teacher fixed them up a bit and told us quite clearly in Japanese what we did incorrectly.

We went to a tea ceremony while in Kyoto a few days ago. This one at Murako's class, however, was for summer and we had iced tea. Usually a Japanese girl takes tea ceremony lessons to help her gain charm and grace, not to give for other people in her home. The tea ceremony has a definite pattern and each movement is graceful and beautiful.

So ended another day here in Japan. Needless to say, we were all pretty tired.

Europe Relatively Calm As Berlin Showdown Nears

EDITOR'S NOTE: The foreign ministers of America, Britain, France and West Germany will meet in Paris Saturday to co-ordinate Western plans in the Berlin crisis. This dispatch, based on last minute reports from European capitals, is an appraisal of the situation through the eyes of persons living closest to Berlin.

By HARRY FERGUSON

PARIS (UPI) — The approach to the Berlin showdown on both sides of the Iron Curtain, concerned but calm. The pitch of excitement seems to be higher in the United States than it is anywhere over here.

President Kennedy's firm stand on Berlin and the measures he outlined for coping with the crisis were greeted with sighs of relief in Western European capitals. Something close to defeatism probably would have swept Europe if any signs of weakness had been detected in Kennedy's speech.

Detailed reports from United Press International correspondents around Europe show:

West Berlin — Much encouraged by the Kennedy speech and ready to stand firmly alongside any arrangements the foreign ministers make here. But the UPI report adds: "If the West lets West Berliners down, they will make arrangements with the Communists as a matter of survival. If you are drifting on a raft in the ocean, you don't reject help from a big vessel just because it's flying a Red flag."

Moscow — (from Henry Shapiro, dean of the American press corps) — "Although the Russians naturally are concerned about the growing tensions and the theoretical possibility of war, they do not show it outwardly. Moscow is normal today with people going about their ordinary business. The shops, theaters and beaches are crowded and thousands of travelers are going to and from the holiday resorts. There is no evidence of mass hysteria and no run on the stores for purposes of hoarding. There is nothing, such as troop maneuvers, to indicate any official military preparation."

London — Berlin is recognized as a long-run danger, but Britain is pre-occupied with problems not so serious but more immediate. The Macmillan government is making big headlines with an austere economic program and is sticking its toe cautiously into the water of an economic alliance on the Continent. The hard-headed, practical diplomats in the British Foreign Office applauded the Kennedy speech as an "excellent balance of firmness and diplomacy."

The British want to exhaust every possibility of negotiation in Berlin, but if the worst happens they are prepared to fight. Paris — There is no feeling of crisis among the people and probably won't be until Frenchmen return from their traditional August holidays. Right now the feeling is vacation first, crisis later.

The French newspapers are giving attention to Berlin, but they are more interested in the Algerian and Tunisian crises. Rome — The people show no concern, but the Italian government is extremely interested in the Berlin situation. Premier Amintore Fanfani's visit to Moscow is expected to be the occasion for making Italy's position clear and it will be as follows: That Italy is completely within the Western bloc and supports the United States entirely. Kennedy's speech was widely printed and applauded by all newspapers except those of the extreme left and Communist persuasion. They referred to it as "menacing."

Mothers and Daughters Enjoy Relaxing Vacations

A pleasant two-week vacation drew to a close when Mrs. Ruth Cecchi and Mrs. Mary Troy stopped at Camp Wrightwood to pick up their daughters, Angela Cecchi and Virginia Troy, who had spent two weeks at the camp.

While the girls were there Mrs. Cecchi and Mrs. Troy relaxed at Richardson Springs Resort near Lake Tahoe. In Redwood City they were houseguests of Mrs. Cecchi's parents-in-law Mr. and Mrs. John Cecchi for several days and then they drove to Ori Grande to visit at the home of Mrs. Troy's daughter and family. Mr. and Mrs. Paul Sanborn en route to Camp Wrightwood, returning to the desert the end of the week.

Sally Gorges returned to her home Sunday after a 10-day visit with her friend, Shirley Reed, and her parents who make their home in Long Beach. The Reeds are frequent desert visitors.

While vacationing in Oceanside Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Janulis celebrated their 20th wedding anniversary with Mr. and Mrs. Chuck

Smith of Oceanside who were observing their twenty third anniversary, with dinner at "Marty's."

Mrs. Lena Knowlton and her grandson, Dan, spent three days at Pinion Pines following Dan's return from New Orleans where he spent two weeks visiting with his father.

While spending several days with her sister and brother in law Dr. Etta and Dr. M. C. Wood at their home in Lomita, Mr. and Mrs. Ed Jorgensen and daughter Judy visited the Long Beach State College Campus where Judy contemplates attending after her graduation next year.

Mr. and Mrs. Don Veitch returned home after spending the month of July on a camping trip to Prescott, Ariz., with her niece and family. Mr. and Mrs. Tom Dixon and children Gay and baby John who make their home in Lakewood.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed Smith enjoyed last week at Oceanside where they were guests at the Colonial Hotel overlooking the Pacific.

Doris Krause is back at Scott's Desert Wear after a most enjoyable motor trip accompanied by Barbara Groatix to Barbara's 100 year-old farm home near Toronto, Canada, on the Bay Of Quinty. While there they visited in Ottawa and Niagara Falls.

Last week visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Mike Eversz were their grandchildren, David and Kathy, whose parents, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Eversz, drove down from their home in Fullerton for the weekend.

Mr. and Mrs. Ted Watkins and son Charles returned last Wednesday from a vacation trip to Zion National Park, Bryce Canyon, and North Grand Canyon. Returning through Arizona they stopped at Jerome, the historic old ghost town. Thursday they left for Canoga Park to spend the weekend at the home of their daughter and family Mr. and Mrs. James Taber.

Blind Woman Certified as School Teacher

ST. AUGUSTINE, Fla. (UPI) — Blue-eyed Mary McCollough, 23, is the daughter of a school teacher. Ever since she can remember she has had one goal in life — to teach school.

State School Supt. Thomas D. Bailey asked the state cabinet to certify the Stetson University graduate as a full-fledged teacher. The state's top officials agreed to waive a requirement that all teachers be physically fit and voted to give the red-haired Miss McCollough a teaching certificate.

Miss McCollough has been completely blind for the past eight years.

"I'm so happy they have given me a chance," she said after hearing the news. "I'll try very hard to be a good teacher."

Miss McCollough attended the state school for the deaf and blind here after she lost her sight in the ninth grade. She was graduated from Stetson this year with a degree in elementary education and did her intern teaching at the sixth grade in the North Ridgewood Elementary School at Daytona Beach.

Teaching, she said, is a cinch. "The children tried to see what they could get away with at first," she said. "But they soon learned I could hear and knew more than they thought, and they soon settled down."

"I use more or less an honor system, and there is little cheating. Other students really on their honor stare down any who may try to cheat. And sixth graders don't like to do anything to displease their little boy or girl friends."

"I have wanted to teach since I was very small," she said. "When I lost my sight, I wondered if I could still become a teacher. It's a job to convince others I can do it. But my father said I could."

Miss McCollough said she does her own cooking, washing, ironing and other domestic chores and hires a reader to help her grade examination papers. She said she plans to be married next summer to Ewell Mauldin, a dormitory supervisor at the deaf and blind school, and then "I plan to teach right on."

Undercover Action

MADILL, Okla. (UPI) — Not all tourists who travel to southern Oklahoma's lake resorts have come to fish for bass, according to Marshall County Sheriff Urkle Hargis.

Hargis says that about half of the 50 cases of cattle rustling reported to him last year involved alleged tourists who used camping and fishing equipment as camouflage for nefarious deeds.

'For Rear View, Not Lipsticking, Honey'

By DICK WEST
United Press International

WASHINGTON (UPI) — There are, according to the American Automobile Association, 35 mistakes that a driver can make in operating a vehicle on the public streets and highways.

The AAA obvious has never ridden in a car being driven by the mother of my children. Should it ever do so, it would find that its estimate of potential mistakes is far too conservative.

A driver taking an AAA road check would receive three demerits for "failure to adjust rear-view mirror." But the check list doesn't mention any penalty for using the mirror in the application of cosmetics.

"Hits curb" is assessed at 10 demerits. Nothing is said, however, about running completely over the curb and up on the sidewalk.

"Jerky start" is deplored by the AAA at the rate of five demerits. But it is strangely silent on the subject of putting the gear lever in the "drive" position when the intention is to back up.

For these and other reasons, the check list is inadequate for certain female drivers of my acquaintance.

At Road-E-O

I picked up a copy of the list at the "National Teen-age Road-E-O," which is a contest held each year to choose the nation's most skillful teen-age driver.

The reason I went to the Road-E-O is because I have a sort of morbid interest in teen-age driving.

The student, who remained unidentified by authorities, said he had attended Kearney High School and entered the buildings several times during the summer to take textbooks and scientific equipment for a laboratory in his garage.

Thefts Charged To Honor Pupil

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — A 17-year-old honor student, who planned to take an advanced physics course in the fall under a special students' program, has admitted to police that he stole $2,300 worth of materials from his high school to equip a home laboratory.

The student, who remained unidentified by authorities, said he had attended Kearney High School and entered the buildings several times during the summer to take textbooks and scientific equipment for a laboratory in his garage.

ers, particularly the ones who use the road in front of my house for midnight drag races.

These teen-agers are skilled primarily at throwing beer cans out of a car window. They rarely miss my front lawn. Many a morning my yard contains more tin souvenirs than a Milwaukee garbage dump.

The Road-E-O, however, as I was pleased to learn, does not encourage skills of that sort. Its sponsors even frown on one-armed driving.

The young contestants come here from all 50 states to undergo rigid tests of their ability to maneuver an auto. One of the events was a test in parallel parking.

All the time that I was watching, I kept getting mental pictures of what would happen if my wife were in the contest.

Own System

Although not exactly a teenager, she has invented a system of parallel parking that is perhaps unique in the annals of motoring.

What she does is stop in front of a vacant space, get out of the car, hail the first male pedestrian that comes along, and persuade him to park for her.

How she extricates the auto from the curbside position once it has been parked I do not know. I am afraid to ask.

Another event involved backing out of a simulated garage and down a narrow driveway that was placed off at an angle. It was the test that gave the teen-agers the most trouble, but I think my wife could have passed it easily.

She backs out at an angle even when the driveway is straight. This is why the rear bumper of our car is frequently decorated with shrubbery. We lose more rhododendrons that way.

The Road-E-O, I'm sure, serves a useful purpose, but next year I think the sponsors should test the teen-agers on something more practical — like staying in the traffic pattern at drive-in movies.

U.S. Kicks Off Multi-Million Dollar Latin American Gamble

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Analyst

This week the United States formally undertakes a multi-billion dollar gamble that through an "alliance for progress," encroaching communism can be halted in Latin America and a better way of life brought to Latin America's 200 million people.

In shrill attendance as U. S. and Latin American representatives gather in the resort town of Punta del Este, Uruguay, to give the plan bone and sinew will be Cuba.

Under the plan, the United States pledges far-reaching financial assistance to all Latin American nations committed to defense of free institutions and human rights as defined in the charter of the Organization of American States.

Automatically, it eliminates Communist Cuba.

Castro Opposition
But there because he cannot be barred will be Ernesto (Che) Guevara, economic czar of Fidel

Castro's "socialist" revolution. Castro already has called the plan an "alliance for exploitation" and an attempt to "buy the conscience of Latin America."

Latin Americans can thank him for the plan, he said, because the United States conceived it "out of fear of the example shown by the Cuban revolution."

Whatever the source, Latin American nations have responded eagerly to the plan which for them holds out the same hope as the Marshall Plan extended to Europe in the years of recovery after the war.

And, like the Marshall Plan, it admittedly is going to be expensive with no certainty of success.

Unlike the Marshall Plan which could start on the basis of an advanced, well-established society, the "alliance for progress" must start almost from scratch, battling poverty and illiteracy among more than half the people at the same time that it clears polluted streams and builds roads and industry.

Its price tag can only be estimated, but the estimates so far have run upwards of three billion dollars a year, with the United States assuming more than half the load.

No Immediate Effects
Nor will its effects be seen immediately, for first must come the planning stage which might take a year or more.

A key is the Latin American nations' willingness to help themselves and to come forward with development plans which are considered to be practical.

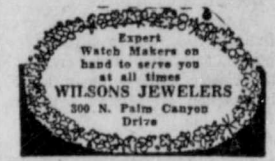

And, just as the Marshall Plan functioned, it is hoped that the Latin Americans themselves can set up a committee through which individual national programs can be channeled, and U.S. aid apportioned, and the technical and planning advice assigned.

This is more than a revival of the old "good neighbor" policy. It is a manifestation of this administration's attitude toward emerging nations. Of them, the President said:

"... They seek an end to injustice, tyranny, and exploitation... and theirs is a revolution which we would support regardless of the 'cold war' and regardless of which political or economic route they should choose to freedom."

Desert Four Republicans Attend GOP Luncheon-Meet

Members of the newly activated Desert Four Republican Women's Club Federated were among the one hundred and fifty in attendance at the luncheon meeting of the Republican Women's Clubs of Riverside County that was held at the Lamp Post restaurant in Beaumont, and hosted by the Beaumont - Cherry Valley Club.

Presiding was Mrs. Everett M. Stone, president of Riverside County Federation who introduced Mrs. Everett Grubb, Southern California Federation vice president and Riverside County organization chairman, who in turn presented Mrs. T. R. Campbell of Rancho Mirage, president of the Desert Four Club, and the presidents of the eight other Riverside County groups.

Assemblyman Gordon Cologne introduced featured speaker Joe Shell, GOP Minority Leader who spoke on the Republican situation in California today.

In a most impressive manner he emphasized the menace to the state thru the increase in crime prompted by narcotic addiction, and outlined the tighter narcotics legislation recently voted into law. Among the guests were Sen. Nelson Dilworth and former congressman John Phillips. The Desert Four Club embraces Palm Desert, Rancho Mirage, Wonder Palms - Tamarisk area and Cathedral City, and will reconvene in September.

Dairy Plenty

NEW YORK (UPI) — In June when milk production is seasonally high, supplies of a great variety of dairy products are plentiful, the U.S. Department of Agriculture reminds food shoppers.

June is the month to look for specials in cottage cheese, sour cream and ice creams.

The Why of a Woman in Who's Who

Elaine Elser Listed From Palm Springs

By SUE RAYMOND

In the Who's Who of American Women, which geographically lists some 20,000 women prominent for professional, vocational, or civic achievements, a single Palm Springs resident is mentioned. . . Mrs. Elaine Childs Elser of Tamarisk Road.

A desert resident for the past 15 years, Mrs. Elser began working toward her notable achievements as Mrs. Fred Johnson in 1905, when she became a widow with an infant son.

A graduate of the University of Michigan at Ann Arbor, she obtained employment as an army teacher and, in 1910, was sent to the Island of Luzon in the Philippines.

At that time, rumors were rampant that the islands were infested with fever and poisonous reptiles. Not so sure they weren't true, the traveling teacher proceeded alone, and left her four-year-old son, Fred, with his maternal grandmother, Mrs. Jonathan Webster Childs.

Upon discovery that the reptiles were no more dangerous than our desert variety and fevers were normal, Mrs. Elser sent for her son and mother.

Becomes Mrs. Elser

In 1911, Mrs. Johnson met and married real estate broker Henry W. Elser, who had been an islander for some 13 years.

At a Manila high school, she taught a wide variety of subjects, and is still remembered as the teacher of some of the island's most influential men.

In 1916, after observing the success of an embroidery business run by an American woman, Mrs. Elser decided to practice as well as preach her family motto . . . "Imitate quam invideat." . . . "Imitate Rather Than Envy. (This motto is inscribed on the Childs family crest which graces her fireplace).

Following are excerpts from a letter written by Mrs. Elser of her home and embroidery shop:

"In 1910, when I first came to Manila, I looked with deep interest at the old houses built by the Spaniards. I was teaching then in the high school in the Walled City. Most of the houses in this city had very small gardens, as ground was at a premium, and these were in back as the Spaniards wanted privacy above everything.

"As we would sometimes ride around in the evening with the fragrance of the dama de noche perfuming the air, I had come to notice and admire a big house in Malate. I was very happy one day when a friend took me to call on the Americans who owned it.

"The entrance was through great iron gates . . . tiles covering the entrance hall were covered with cadena de armor, the pink vine that runs riot all over Manila . . . the walls of the Sala (living room) were covered with silk tapestry brought from Europe . . . the diningroom housed a carved sideboard which reached the high ceiling . . . the azotea (back porch) connected with the kitchen and a bathroom, which was tiled in blue . . . the bedroom on this floor was as large as four American bedrooms and two of its massive windows looked on the beautiful garden filled with tall trees, somewhat like our cottonwood. In all, it was a house out of a story book.

Home Is Hers

"At that time I was teaching for the munificent salary of $100 a month, and would not have dreamed that for 16 years this wonderful place would be my home and that I would make the money to pay for it from my embroidery shop.

But things do happen like that. When I started my embroideries

we lived down the street, but suddenly our house was sold and we had to look for another, and one big enough for my business.

When this mansion was brought to our attention, both my husband and I thought we would never afford the rent, which was $100 a month. The idea of buying would have seemed outside the realms of possibility, but we decided to take a chance . . . and moved in.

"I started with the name The Philippine Embroidery; but later, when my shop became more glamorous, I gave it my own name, and then it was known far and wide as Elaine's. I even used the Childs crest on the cards."

At first she ran her shop on a wholesale basis and received orders from Wannamaker's and Bonwit Teller's in New York (she notes now, that she had never heard of these shops at the time, and probably wouldn't have filled the orders had she known the fine shops they were headed for).

She was helped in her work by a Philippino Capizit (head woman), who had a knowledge of the business.

After a year of wholesaling, she opened a retail store in her home.

Buy Land

As success came to her, she helped others. Each month, a stipend was sent to the Belgian Relief Fund and the French War Orphans.

In 1920, her husband had the opportunity to purchase all the property given to the Dominican Brothers 100 years previously, by the King of Spain. Elser, who didn't have enough cash of his own to purchase the land, which comprised a small town, tried to borrow from his American friends. They had no faith in the resale value of the land . . . so he gathered the needed money from Oriental friends.

At that time Philipinos could lease, but not buy, land. The idea of subdividing land was sparked in Elser's mind, when he asked a Philipino why he hadn't improved his property. In answer, he said "Why should I? The landlord will only raise my rent."

His first subdivision was built on the side of a hill behind Manila, and called San Juan Heights, which to this day is the company name.

Comparable to a modern day savings and loan association, the company slogan was "Own Your Home." Thousands of small lots were sold on the credit plan and money was lent for improvement. So reasonably priced was the land, that the poorest laborer could now OWN his land.

San Juan Heights was the first land company, but far from the last. Others choosing to imitate rather than envy formed new companies.

In 1921, Elser was afflicted with cancer of the liver and, eventually, the disease affected his mind. At this time, he was taken advantage of by unscrupulous persons, and persuaded to invest in unsound property.

When Mrs. Elser was widowed for the second time in 1923, she was left property poor and with poor properties (most of the San Juan stock had been pried away from Elser).

After nine arduous years of court battling, the purchases made by her husband were set aside and his San Juan stock was released to his widow.

Returns to U.S.

In 1933, Mrs. Elser returned to the United States, but remained in close touch with her company. It was at her instigation that the company donated a great deal of subdivision land for school and recreational use.

Though safe from active warfare, Mrs. Elser was hard hit, when the Japanese took the Philippines in 1942. They usurped her rights as a landlord and collected the payments due her. Fortunately, a group of loyal Philipinos buried the San Juan contracts and papers, so they could not be destroyed.

For the next four years, Mrs. Elser sold her carefully collected Oriental antiques (some from the Ming Dynasty) in order to sustain herself. She was also aided by her son, who was now in the army, married, and the father of three children. At this time, her daughter-in-law, Margaret, who had often spoofed her indulgence in Oriental art, admitted that this indulgence had turned into a distinct asset.

After 1946, due to the intact contracts and papers, business resumed as usual, and Mrs. Elser moved to Palm Springs.

In her home-with-an-Oriental-atmosphere, Mrs. Elser lives with her son, Col. Fred Elser, U.S. Army Ret., and his wife, Margaret. Fred makes frequent visits to the San Juan Heights Co., which is capably run by directors.

In Palm Springs, Locally active in WAIF and the Altar Guild of St. Paul's Episcopal Church, Mrs. Elser was at one time vice Regent of the DAR in the Orient (her family came from England to Boston in 1630), and is a Daughter of Colonial Wars.

It is hard to believe you are in Palm Springs, when looking at the abundance of Oriental antiques placed about her home.

One wall is dominated by an embroidered tapestry depicting the priest of an Oriental myth. Set in niches are a hand-carved Confucious, which was taken from a Confucian Temple, and given to her in 1916; and a jeweled gold of wealth of the Ming Dynasty, which is seated on a tufted satin altar.

On a Korean chest, sits a tree fashioned from jade and turquoise. Fronting the fireplace, is an ancient Chinese jug of a lovely blue, which is etched in gold leaf. In her dinette, are the remains of a 200 piece set of Canton China.

She has a piece of argon, a lead-like substance, which is used for bartering by the uncivilized inhabitants on the Island of Mindanao. She recalls visiting this island with her husband and being the first white woman seen by its inhabitants. One islander asked of her husband, "How many horses did she cost?"

Pieces fashioned from narra, a brown wood indigenous to the Philippines, are plentiful in her home. Her dining room table is carved from one piece of this wood, and unbelievably weighty.

Her lanai-type room houses bowls of this same wood which, because of their weight, are used for show only.

Indeed, with the thousands of Oriental objects in view, I seemed to be away from the desert, until I glanced through the lanai windows and saw one of our thousands of swimming pools, so incongruous in a setting that should have been surrounded by salt water.

Dad's Diet Important When Mom Begins Eating For Two

When a father-to-be turns down liver or gives vent to his pet food peevish at the dinner table, he may be affecting the health of his unborn child. For a woman's ability to produce a lusty, normal baby is influenced by what she and her husband eat during her pregnancy.

"No discussion of diet improvement in the young mother is complete without including a discussion of the dietary habits of the prospective father," according to Dr. Genevieve Stearns of the Iowa University College of Medicine. She discusses the problem in a pamphlet on "Nutrition in Pregnancy" published by the Council on Foods and Nutrition of the American Medical Association.

A prospective father should see that his wife eats the food proper for production of a healthy infant, and eat the same food himself to relieve her work load. "He will in no way be harmed by such a diet (in fact, it may even help the next baby)," Dr. Stearns said.

Why is diet so important in pregnancy?

Why is diet so important in pregnancy? Robert W. Hillman, a professor of the State University of New York College of Medicine, says that human and laboratory studies have shown good nutrition before, during and after pregnancy to be related to all these conditions:

"Toxemia (blood poisoning) and other maternal complications; length of labor, newborn weight, length and chest circumference; the occurrence of prematurity, still-birth, abortion and sterility; and even intelligence of offspring."

The pregnant woman needs a balanced diet, usually of around 2,300 calories to provide for her and her unborn baby's needs (and perhaps about 300 more in the later stages of pregnancy and lactation). High quality protein, minerals and vitamins are essential. Only about 30 per cent of the calories should come from fat, Dr. Hillman says.

"Multivitamin supplements . . . seem warranted to provide a margin of safety. Although these may not be necessary in all, or even most instances, it is impossible at present to satisfactorily identify parents and/or conditions presenting a normal requirements."

Moreover, the crucial and irrevocable first 40 weeks of an unborn baby's existence "permit neither deliberation nor experimentation," he cautions.

While her doctor will recommend a specific diet for each mother-to-be, the following general diet tips are based on the recent medical recommendations, for both the mother and father-to-be while awaiting arrival of their new baby. Both should have each day:

Milk: Mother, one quart; dad, one pint.

Vegetables: Mother, three or more servings of green leafy or yellow vegetables, at least one raw salad and one boiled or baked potato; dad, two or more servings of green or yellow vegetables.

Fruit: Mother, three or more servings of fruit, at least one citrus fruit or juice; dad, at least two servings, one being citrus. Remember, the pregnant woman needs more Vitamin C, because of its crucial role in growth, than her husband.

Meat, fish, poultry, eggs: Mother, three or more protein foods including an egg once a day and liver once a week; dad, two or more protein foods and three or four eggs a week.

Cereals, breads: Mother, one serving of whole grain cereal and three slices of enriched or whole grain bread and butter or margarine; dad, two or more servings unless he's watching his weight.

Mother should avoid fried foods, rich desserts, highly seasoned foods and an excess of salt or salty foods — and so should dad as a matter of general good health. They are usually full of "empty" calories — adding little nutritive value but helping to put on unwanted pounds.

Scout Troop 3 Joins Troop 2 In La Jolla

Mrs. Trenton Dunphy, leader of Senior Scout Troup 3 of Rancho Mirage and members Patti Patane, Sandra Dunphy, Susan Jensen, Margo Morrison, Kathy Shepard and Lynne Hammerschlag are home from a three day trip to San Diego.

They were guests at the Girl Scout House on the grounds of Balboa Park.

Following their arrival they visited San Diego, the El Cajon Mission (the first mission built in California), toured Old Town and the waterfront.

Returning to the scout house they dressed for dinner at the El Cortez Hotel and then enjoyed "Exodus" on the wide screen at the Capri.

Next day they drove along the Peninsula and crossed on the ferry on the way to La Jolla where they spent the afternoon swimming, and joined Girl Scout Troop 2 from Palm Springs for a cookout on the beach.

The cookout was the initial preparation for the World Round-Up of Girl Scouts being held in the summer of 1962, in Maine.

After leaving the scout house they visited in Balboa and returned along the coast, they stopped for more swimming at Huntington Beach.

Tips Will Help Owners on Swimming Pool Maintenance

The number of Palm Springs area homes with private swimming pools has jumped each year for more than a decade, and thousands of additional households take the plunge each year. Few of the actual or potential swimming pool owners, however, know as much as they should about pool maintenance. Yet this knowledge can save time and money, increase swimming fun and safety.

Probably the most important single aspect of swimming pool maintenance is proper filtration. That crystal-clear, tantalizingly cool-looking water most people picture when they think about pools simply can't be achieved any other way. Fortunately, today's filters operate with ease and economy — IF you know a bit about maintenance.

Only two basic types of pool filters are used: sand and diatomite. Both are effective, though the diatomite units are more compact, offering greater efficiency in less space and more operational flexibility. Also, during World War II, the U.S. Army learned that diatomite filters remove many undesirable organisms from water. Diatomite filters may be portable or installed permanently. Proper maintenance of either type revolves around three fundamentals: care of filter and elements, proper use of filter aids and chemicals, and regular, thorough cleaning.

Diatomite filters must be pre-coated with a filter aid to prevent clogging of the filter elements. This is done by circulating a slurry, or mixture, of diatomite and water into the filter to provide a coating about 1-16 of an inch thick on the filter screens. The slurry should contain 0.1 lb. of diatomite for each square foot of filter area.

During the filtration cycle, which lasts from three to ten days, it is desirable that diatomite be regularly added to prevent slimes and other dirt from clogging the precoat layer. This can be done by placing a supply of diatomite into the filter's body feed apparatus, which will "dole it out" as needed during the filtration cycle.

The third step, cleaning the filter, can be done by backwashing, sluicing or spraying.

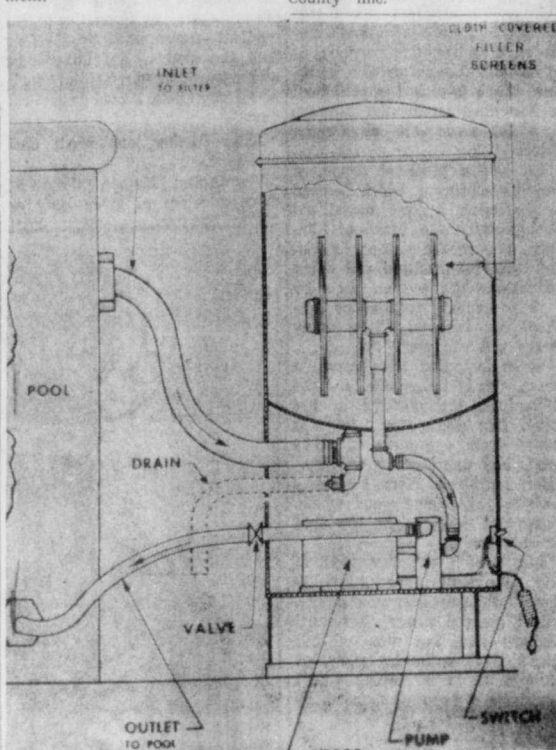

Backwashing is the most common method for cleaning the pressure type of diatomite filter. In backwashing, water is pumped in a reverse direction through the elements and discharged to waste. Sluicing or spraying is the usual method for cleaning vacuum-type diatomite filters. The filter is drained and the caked material is then washed off the elements by spraying or sluicing with a hose nozzle.

Proper pre-coating, cleaning and chlorination will prevent short filter cycles and high filter pressures caused by the clogging of the element. When the elements do get plugged up, they are cleaned in one of two ways: by hand-scrubbing or by pumping a suitable solution into the filter and soaking the elements. Most filter manufacturers furnish specific cleaning directions which should be carefully followed.

In sand filters, the sand and gravel bed should be frequently checked. The dirt which penetrates deep into the sand bed during filtration can't always be removed by cleaning. This dirt, combining with sand and chemicals, causes the formation of "mudballs," the cracking of the filtering surface, and the shrinkage of the filter bed from the sidewalls of the tank. When this happens the only thing to do is replace the old sand bed with a new one.

Though sand filters don't require the use of filter aids, they do need the frequent addition of chemicals such as alum to improve their filtering efficiency. Alum forms a soft gelatinous mass called a "floc" over the top of a filter bed; this floc screens out particles that would otherwise pass through the filter sand. Alum will floc only in water that is somewhat alkaline (pH of 7.2 to 8.4). If water is on the acid side, soda ash should be used to restore alkalinity.

Clean a sand filter by backwashing, forcing the pool water through the filter bed in a direction opposite the normal flow during filtering. Do this whenever the accumulation of dirt in the sand bed is interfering with the proper flow of water. Sand and gravel filters will operate more efficiently if chemicals are added when backwashing — and if the sand bed is periodically sterilized by chemical treatment.

TYPICAL POOL FILTER drawing shows components of a typical small pool filter utilizing Celite filter aid. Pool water coming through inlet goes into filter tank. The action of the pump draws water through the cloth covered filter screens on which a precoat of filter aid is held in place by the vacuum created by the pump. Filtered water is then pumped back into the pool. Filters of this type are extremely compact and may be portable or installed permanently.

Revise Country Club Zoning

RIVERSIDE — A change in zoning for 80 acres of the Country Club Village No. 1 subdivision at Palm Desert has been approved by the Board of Supervisors on recommendation of the County Planning Commission.

Action came following a hearing at which there were no protests.

Most of the area, half a mile north of Avenue 44 between Deep Canyon Road and Cook Street, will be in the R-1 single family zone with some R-2A and a small section of W-1.

In another action the supervisors adopted a one-year interim zoning plan for the lower Coachella Valley, to become effective Aug. 30.

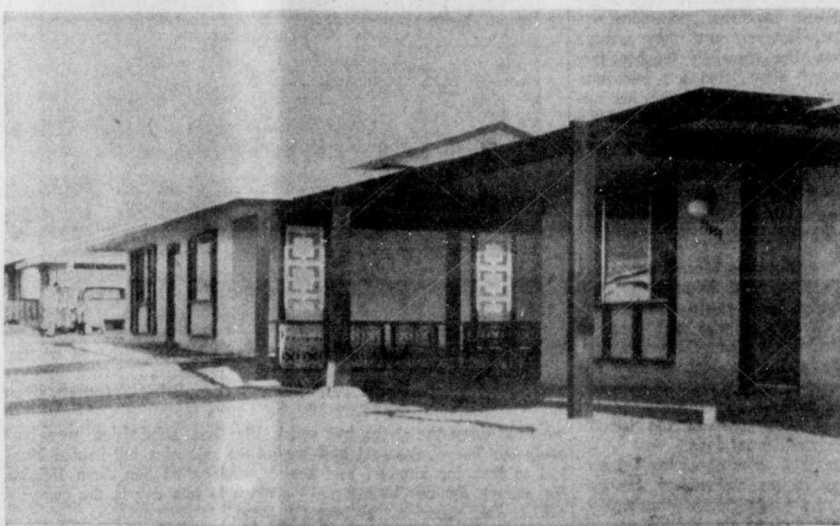

A final zoning plan is to be developed by the commission during the interim period for the area from Avenue 48 to the Imperial County line.

THE RAINIER, above, the biggest seller at Palm City has a two-bedroom, two-bathroom floor plan. Like all models in the retirement city, the Rainier has refrigerated air conditioning, carport, built-in range, a spacious patio, and wall-to-wall carpeting. Below, the first homes in the Palm City retirement community are completed and are now being readied for incoming residents. The dwellings will be landscaped by the builders with lawns and shrubs. Over 410 homes in the initial 450-home unit are already sold.

Palm City Developers Cite Popularity Factors

PALM DESERT — Five factors are cited by the developers as weighing heavily in the decision of couples purchasing a Palm City home for their retirement years.

They are:

1. Easy-to-maintain homes, attractive and designed for desert living.
2. Community's emphasis on "active" retirement at a modest cost.
3. Proximity of Palm City to major points of interest and varied attractions.
4. Easy - to - get - around - in development, with many services and conveniences.
5. Dry, sunny climate, conducive to healthful living.

"We believe these are the major reasons senior citizens, most of whom are experienced buyers, have so readily accepted the new concept of retirement living offered in Palm City," said Nels Severin, developer. Severin, nationally-known Los Angeles builder, is former president of the National Association of Home Builders.

He noted that the first unit of 450 homes in Palm city has been nearly sold out, though a number of choice lots remain.

Built Around Golf Course

The $30 million city-size community, located in the Coachella Valley near Palm Springs, will consist of 1,800 homes and cooperative apartments when completed. The project, built around an 18-hole golf course, also has complete recreational facilities and its own shopping and medical center.

Furnished, landscaped model homes and apartments are open daily for inspection at Palm City on Washington Street in Palm Desert, 16 miles southeast of Palm Springs. They can be reached by Highway 111 to Washington Street and following the directional signs.

Buyers may select from 19 exteriors in four two- and three-bedroom floor plans. Priced from $12,995, both FHA and conventional financing is available.

The first group of homes passed final inspection last week and are ready for occupancy, Severin said. The initial 12-unit apartment building of one- and two-bedroom cooperative apartments has also been completed. A total of 400 apartments are planned, of which 120 are to be built this year.

Purchase Restricted
Built-in electric ranges, wall-to-wall carpeting, large closets, fiberglass tub enclosures and special refrigerated air conditioning are a few of the features found in the homes and apartments.

One member of a family must be over 50 to buy a home or apartment in Palm City.

THE WEST SIDE of the American Maintenance Co. building at 68-131 Highway 111 was designed by Walter White to control the sun through use of ground-to-roof steel decking. Above, the steel angles welded to the front perimeter give a finished appearance. Photo below shows baffle screen bolted to steel columns, providing interesting morning patterns on the patio of AMCO's

President James C. Morely. The steel sculpture next to the window is elevated above a shallow reflecting pool.

Steel Structure Answers Resort Price Challenge

Architectural distinction at a budget price of $10 a square foot is quite an office building design challenge, especially in and about Palm Springs — an area replete with dramatic architecture.

Walter White, designer-builder of Palm Desert, achieved just such a design for an 820-square-foot office and display building of American Maintenance Co. in the resort area. Large expanses of glass on two sides were required by the client; yet adequate protection from the sun was necessary.

To meet these requirements and to obtain a column-free interior for the single room, White suspended the 41-foot clear span roof from three 60-foot-long rigid bents composed of 10-inch light-weight steel beams. The roof is composed of 18-gauge corrugated steel deck welded to the bottom flanges of the beams.

This same steel decking was utilized on the west side of the building with the seams placed horizontally and welded to the inside flanges of the columns to achieve the same appearance as the roof. The side wall decking also protects the interior from the afternoon sun. In the backwall, the decking was placed with the seams standing.

By continuing the roof beams out past the building line some 20 feet on one side, a pleasant, uncovered patio area was created at one side. A wind baffle and morning shade patterns were created in this patio by the bolting of 12 wooden two-by-fours to steel angles welded to the three 17-inch steel columns.

A five-foot roof deck cantilever, extending from the front of the building and the east side, keeps the sunlight out of glass-in areas.

Seismic loads were compensated for by the use of 3/8-inch-diameter rods as "X" bracing on both bays of the paneled side wall and overhead between the beams that form the patio.

Framing for the exterior glass walls was accomplished with 1 1/2 x 4-inch rectangular steel tube columns placed in two bays 10 feet on center and 11 feet and 9 feet 9 1/2 inches in the other two bays.

Termite Damage Said Increasing

WASHINGTON — Are termites giving your house the "munch-over"?

The chances that they are doing just that have more than doubled within the last 10 years, according to Dr. Thomas E. Snyder, research associate of the Smithsonian Institution and one of the world's foremost authorities on termites.

Dr. Snyder's estimate of termite damage to structures in the United States has been increased to about $250,000,000 annually as compared to $100,000,000 ten or 15 years ago. The retired senior entomologist of the Department of Agriculture's Bureau of Entomology and Plant Quarantine says there is evidence that subterranean termites are slowly spreading northward, possibly contributing to the steady yearly increase in damage.

"Termites have long existed wherever woody vegetation grows throughout the United States," he says. "The trend toward milder winters in northern areas has perhaps contributed to population increases. As a result, their presence has become more manifest in areas where the common belief was that they did not exist. In addition, new construction of low-built houses with central heating allows termites to work year round. This accounts for much of the increased damage, especially in slab-on-ground buildings where termites are hard to detect."

While not the predominant means of spreading their destructiveness, certainly the most heralded are the annual spring and fall swarming. At this time young termites get the irresistible urge to enter their season in society. They fly a short distance, pair off, and start "socializing"—likely under or near a house.

Dr. Snyder calls termites "social cockroaches" because, unlike their slightly older cousins, termites are gregarious and display an elaborate society. The earliest of any, their civilization is the most curious, complex, intelligent, and in a sense the most logical and best fitted to the difficulties of existence of any that has ever appeared on this globe. From several points of view this civilization — although fierce, sinister, and often repulsive — is superior to that of the bee, the ant, and even of man himself. Termites roamed the earth about 250 million years before humans appeared, converting wood into usable plant food. Today there are over 2,100 species of termites in the tropical and temperate parts of the world — 41 in the United States.

Termites will eat anything containing cellulose, including furniture, clothing, shoes, books, mummies, and coffins in graves. They have been known to bore into bones, elephant tusks, ivory, human cadavers protected by formaldehyde, lead sheathing, rubber insulation, and lime mortar. By building houses low to the ground in wood areas and centrally heating them during the winter man has changed the termite's role from that of scavenger to pest.

"Practically all damage can be avoided by proper construction and pressure impregnation of important timbers in the understructure with chemicals," said Dr. Snyder. He also advises periodic inspections by reliable termite control firms.

THE DESERT SUN Page 7

GARDENING

The Yellow Oleanders Do Well Here

We residents of the low desert feel a little thankful on this date, the sun's orbit is gradually diminishing, the days will gradually get shorter and by September fifteenth will start buckling down to bringing our gardens back to splendor.

The newcomer, who has to start from scratch, has a lot of hard work ahead of him. To him will come the back-breaking chores of preparing the sandy soil, digging out the debris and fertilizing the soil. We old timers can assure him it will not be an easy accomplishment. If in four years he has a garden and lawn that he and his best friends can look on with great pride he has accomplished something that can be boasted of by few amateurs.

Among the plants that we have not mentioned we would suggest that he, on his visit to the local nurseryman of his choice, should study the Thevetia Nereifolia, the yellow Oleander. This tree has foliage similar to dwarf bamboo. Granted it is not as hardy as the everyday oleander but should be rooted in soil that is similar to the soil in which the latter is planted. It is not quite as hardy as the common oleander and needs a little extra care when the temperature slips down to 28 degrees. It can be protected from this chill by a plentiful cover of damp peat moss around the trunk. From summer until after Christmas its showy yellow trumpet flower will more than repay the money and time spent on its growth.

A flower that seems to be losing its popularity lately that is still worthy of note is the Periwinkle or Vinca. It comes in several colors, is often planted in long, narrow beds between a walk and the building. It grows fast, easy to handle, blooms in first year, is inexpensive and may be obtained in three differing colors locally. Its colors are lavender, white, and rose, each with red center. Whether planted in sun or shade makes little difference, but don't stint the water if you want abundant growth.

The common Oleander—Nerium Oleander—may be seen in almost every garden and street in the occupied desert. It is officially credited with blooming from May to November but we have noted blooms in almost every month in the year. It may be seen as decorating high walls, doing duty as a thick hedge, and accomplishing the chores of a good windbreak. It seems not to be hungry, requires little fertilizer, but once a year requires bone meal. It grows as high as twenty feet but should be pruned to the height that is best suited to the general appearance of its surroundings. If you are not rushed for time it may be grown from slips but large bushes can easily be transplanted. Changes in weather or dry periods make little difference in its growth but it should have a maximum of sunshine. Aphids seem to consider oleander a good feeding ground but, in many instances, these may be washed off the plant with a strong hose spray. However, should they continue to be a nuisance, a monthly spray of nicotine sulphate will eliminate these pests.

Boltz Reports Brisk Sale At Dream Homes Projects

F. Walker Boltz has announced that exactly one month from the day the new 1962 Dream Homes of Palm Springs and Palm Desert were put on display over one half of the 42 houses in Palm Springs had been sold.

Families will start moving into their new Dream Homes beginning Aug. 25, Boltz said.

The hundreds of people who have viewed the new luxurious Dream Homes have been telling the owners, Mr. and Ms. Boltz, that they have "never seen such luxurious homes selling at anywhere near the price."

Dream Homes of Palm Springs and Palm Desert are available to the veteran and non-veteran with either buyer having their loans insured by the government.

Gas Tax Issue Still Alive

A "temporary" one-cent-a-gallon increase in the federal gasoline tax was supposed to expire at the end of June. But it didn't. Congress voted, and the President signed, a bill which extends that "temporary" tax until October 1, 1972.

That date is 11 years away. And if so long a period of time is to be regarded as "temporary," it looks as if the dictionary should begin revising its definitions.

The argument for this extension—which is used on behalf of other tax measures affecting the motorist—is that it is necessary to keep the $40-billion-plus federal super-highways program in the black. But there is little justice in that position.

The program was urged and adopted largely as a national security measure. And national security costs should most certainly be charged on as equitable a basis as possible against all the taxpayers—not just one group of them.

Moreover, excessive gasoline taxes—which, state and federal combined, now average about 50 per cent of the pre-tax value of the fuel—are self-defeating. Motorists restrict their driving, buy the small economy cars, and escape the burden in every way they can. An exorbitant tax can, and often does, produce less revenue than a reasonable one.

The issue is still very much alive. Beyond doubt, there will be campaigns to further boost the state and federal gas taxes. Beyond doubt, there will be more empty talk of "temporary" increases. The motorist will have to come out of his corner fighting if what is left of his rights are to be preserved.

Checks Are So Chic--

Dear Abby . . .

. . . by Abigail VanBuren

DEAR ABBY: My little brother takes violin lessons. He is supposed to practice an hour a day, but he practices TWO hours a day and sometimes more. Abby, he is driving me crazy.

I am 15 and have homework to do. When he plays those exercises, I can't think. When he stops, I can still hear him for hours afterwards. My parents won't listen to me because they think he's great. He is really awful. Please tell me how to get a little peace around here so I can study.

GOING CRAZY

DEAR GOING: There are two gadgets which might help. A mute for your brother's violin, or a pair of wax ear plugs for yourself. Or you could go to the library or a friend's house to study. Don't belittle a beginner's ambition. Practice makes perfect.

DEAR ABBY: I am eleven years old, and I don't have a boy friend yet. I have had my eye on a certain boy for a long time but I am not making any headway with him. He is 12 and I think he likes me but is too bashful to show it. Everybody says I am cute and smart. He wears a ring, and I would like to get it. Can you help me?

CUTE BUT MUTE

DEAR CUTE: What's the rush? There is only trouble ahead for the girl who wants to get a band on her finger before she gets the hands off her teeth. Slow up, Honey. You are much too young for such notions.

DEAR ABBY: My two small children and I live with my parents. My father tells my 6-year-old son that he must shake hands, instead of kissing him, before he goes to bed; that he may kiss women, but "big boys do not kiss men." Mother and I feel that my son should be allowed to kiss his grandfather, who must act as a substitute father in this case. My own father kissed his son (my brother) until he was in his teens, and I don't think there was anything wrong with it. How do you feel about this?

YOUNG MOTHER: There is no reason why a six-year-old child shouldn't kiss his grandfather.

Everybody has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to Abby in care of this paper. Enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

For a personal reply, write to ABBY, Box 3365, Beverly Hills, Calif., and include a self-addressed, stamped envelope. Abby answers ALL mail.

This Side of The Sun

By R. F. 'Phat' Graettinger

This will make the women mad.
This guy says their driving's bad.

The public prints Monday gave the results of a survey of the driving habits of women, a scientific study by a newsman—and I'll bet that every place that article was read, the girls were hopping.

THIS REPORTER, by name Denis Holmes up to Monday after which it was Mud, had a pleasant assignment. For three months all he had to do was follow women. In that time, he followed 110 assorted females, each of them two miles, but for obvious reasons, he never caught up with any of them.

He was checking on their driving habits. "They are terrifying," he said and added that he made that remark with every fear of contradiction.

THOSE WOMEN with whom I have talked and who read the thesis, really contradicted him. His survey showed that out of the 110, 84 drove in a totally unsafe manner. 14 were fit to be on the road but only average drivers, eight were equal to men at the wheel and four were better.

It's funny but practically every woman I talked to was in the same category as the last four.

CHIEF FAULT of the woman driver, said Holmes, is that she doesn't pay attention to what she's doing. With cars loaded with children, dogs, shopping et cetera, she is too preoccupied. The rear vision mirror, he added, isn't used for the purpose for which it is intended. It's chief use seems to be in applying lipstick or touching up the face.

HE SAID the twelve who were equal to or better than men, were young girls with quick reflexes and without all of those kids in the car to distract their attention.

Now, I'm not trying to butter up any woman driver or those who pilot me around, but I have to disagree with Holmes even if he is a fellow newsman.

OUTSIDE OF A FEW stern-faced women who ignore boulevard stops and shake their fist and yell insults when you almost hit them, I think women are good drivers.

Sitting in the passenger's seat as I do, I've noticed that, when a man and a woman are in the front seat of a car, two-thirds of the time the woman is driving. Indicating that the man has confidence in a woman's hand at the wheel.

Or it could be she has him cowed.

ONLY THING I've noticed as a big difference between men and women drivers is that the latter's sense of direction isn't as good. Even with a compass in front of them, they'll start for Pomona and wind up in Corona. And many a husband who has tried to direct them is told acidly:

"All right, you know so much, supposing you drive." That is after you're in Corona.

If War, What Can You Do?

Sober Thinking On Civil Defense Fused by Berlin

By KEN REICH
Sun Staff Writer

This week in Palm Springs, as all across the nation, people were beginning to think more seriously about the possibility of war.

A few think it is imminent. One of the four local residents currently building a fallout shelter, when asked whether he thought nuclear war would come, replied last week: "Do you think the sun will rise tomorrow? It will come in the early fall of this year or the spring of next year."

Others are more dubious, though all are at least a bit concerned. Everyone appears agreed on one thing: the United States in general and Palm Springs in particular are not as well equipped as they might be to meet a nuclear attack if it does come.

In the wake of President Kennedy's preparedness speech, authorities feel it is high time that Americans take a sober look at the situation.

The purpose of these articles is threefold.

Each article seeks to answer one of three basic questions which concern Palm Springs. First, what is the basic problem? Second, what arrangements have been made by Palm Springs as a city to meet it? Third, what can the average homeowner do to increase his family's chance of survival?

A nuclear war is likely to come in one of two ways, experts believe. Either, there will be a surprise attack, with very little warning at all, or war will result from what diplomats call an "escalator crisis."

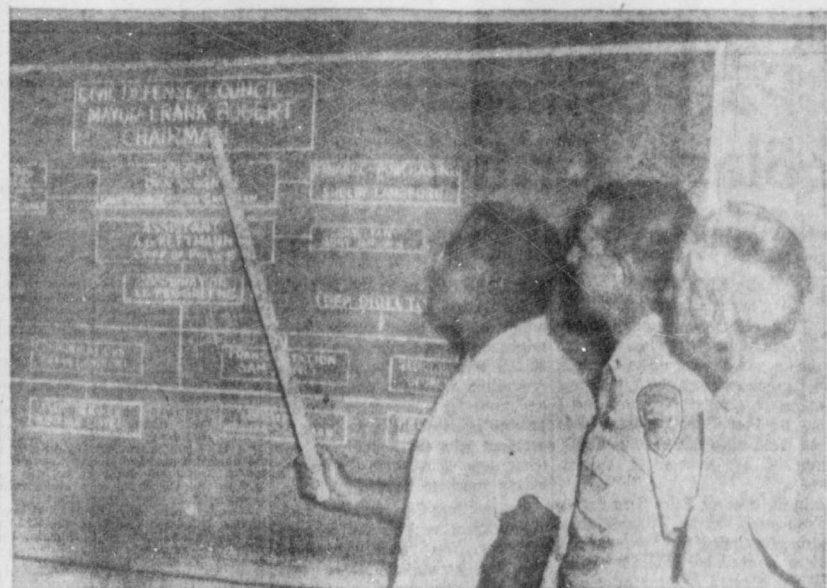

Seesaw Call War

In this latter case, Russia would do something. The U.S. would do something in return. Russia would retaliate, and so forth. During a period of some days tension would rise and popular concern grow until at last the nuclear attack would come.

Whether a war comes through a surprise attack on an escalator-type crisis is very important to Palm Springs. For this city has been designated by civilian defense authorities as a refugee-evacuee reception center.

According to Police Chief August G. Kettmann, Asst. Civil Defense director, Palm Springs is expected to take up to 150,000 evacuees from the Los Angeles metropolitan area, house them, feed them, and generally insure their continued healthy existence.

This is a big order in any case, but it will be easier if there is some warning of nuclear attack. In such an escalator case, there would be time to arrange a more or less orderly evacuation with set numbers of people being diverted into each reception area. When Palm Springs was saturated with evacuees, for instance, new arrivals might be diverted to Indio.

POLICE CHIEF August G. Kettmann, assistant director of Civil Defense here, points to an organization chart noting the responsibilities of various persons in case of nuclear disaster while Civil Defense Coordinator Ted Greene

But if war came through a surprise attack, it is well-recognized that the situation would be much more chaotic.

Palm Springs and other reception centers would have much less time to prepare. Panic among the evacuees would undoubtedly become much more of a factor. There would probably be no orderly control of traffic out of Los Angeles. Many people would arrive injured, or suffering from radioactive exposure. There might be little control as to numbers arriving.

Let it be emphasized immediately that city officials here from Mayor Frank Bogert on down are determined to do everything they can to cooperate with national plans for civil defense. There is no thought here of establishing any local militia to keep refugees out, as was suggested in Las Vegas last week.

Preparations Made

Arrangements have been made and are currently being perfected for giving the evacuees shelter, food, and other help they may need. These arrangements will be discussed in another article tomorrow.

Thus, a primary problem would be the refugees. A second major area of concern would naturally be the direct effects of any bombs dropped on Southern California.

It is not expected that Palm Springs would be a target area. But authorities utter a word of caution here: it is possible that a "miss" of a missile directed toward the Los Angeles area or March Field outside Riverside could lead to a bomb exploding nearby.

In such a case, most current plans would have to be thrown out. It is sad but true that little is being done to prepare Palm Springs for the situation which would arise should an atomic or hydrogen bomb fall in the Coachella Valley.

If what is expected happens, and several atomic weapons are detonated in the metropolitan areas of Southern California, the only direct effect here would be fallout. Heat and blast effects would not extend beyond a distance of about 40 miles from the epicenter of the explosion. And Palm Springs has the mountain for protection.

Depending on wind conditions, where and how and at what height the weapon is detonated, whether it is raining at the time, and other factors, fallout here would vary.

Assuming the worst, a bomb detonated just above the surface, lots of earth particles sucked up into the mushroom cloud, strong winds in the direction of Palm Springs, and rain here, a lethal dose of fallout could conceivably destroy almost all life in this area.

Fallout Danger

But fallout tests have shown that if conditions are normal, fallout would not be nearly so dangerous. Local residents, if they took the normal precautions of bathing, washing out contaminated clothing, and taking shelter in their homes, might become mildly sick from the radiation, but would recover in time.

"We simply don't know how serious the fallout would be," Kettmann says. "Needless to say, those who have home shelters would be better off than those who don't. If we do get a lethal dose, it would just be the end of a lot of us, that's all."

Even assuming Palm Springs was able to adequately handle the thousands of refugees and didn't suffer too much from the fallout, its problems would not be over. For no one knows what the long-range repercussions of an atomic attack would be.

How long would the war go on? What sort of outside help could individual cities expect in maintaining or restoring order? Would adequate supplies of food be available? Would communications with even nearby points be maintained? One can even ask the question whether a national government as such would continue to exist in more than name.

Weak Point Food

If there is any weak point in the whole long-range picture as far as Palm Springs is concerned, it is the food supply. The Desert Sun has learned.

The stark fact is that there aren't great stockpiles of food here. Given 150,000 refugees crowded into town, existing supplies wouldn't last very long.

At the present time, plans call for city officials to notify higher authorities to rush food here. But no one knows what they would do if the higher authorities weren't in a position to send food in.

City officials are concerned about the whole range of problems a nuclear catastrophe would bring, it can be said. But they are operating on a local civil defense budget of only $750 for the year, which amounts to about five and one half cents for each person living here permanently.

TOMORROW: What are Palm Springs plans in event all-out war materializes?

Naming Top Solon Is Easy, But Painful

By HOLMES ALEXANDER

WASHINGTON — It is not difficult to name the dozen or so best members of the House of Representatives, and not difficult even to select the two best, and finally the best of all, but it is painful.

We are dealing here with diligent, brainy, patriotic and worthy persons — some of them good friends — and it is no fun to hurt the feelings of those not chosen. Still, with honor to all who were named in the preceding column, my finalists (in alphabetical order) are Congressman Tom Curtis (R., Mo.) and Eddie Hebert (D., La.).

Which will wear the diadem of Representative of the Year? Despite being in opposition parties, the big, easy-going Southerner, a former newspaperman soon to be sixty, is not in ideological conflict with the intense, aggressive, retort and restless lawyer-legislator of fifty from the Mark Twain country.

Both are economic conservatives with close to puritanical obsessions about public office being a public trust. Both abhor waste and sloppy or cynical management of public business. Their attentions, by accident for awhile, converged upon the atrocities and immoralities of military misbehavior. Curtis, who today serves on the very erudite Joint Economic Committee and the very important House Ways and Means Committee, got his start as a first-term (1951-53) on the so-called Bonner subcommittee looking into Government procurement. Curtis found, among other gauderies, that the Navy had purchased enough tinned meat to last for sixty years. He keeps a surplus can of the item in his office as a memento.

One of the Holy Terrors

Hebert got into military-watching after being fired as a subversive-watcher. During the 80th Congress, and before, he was one of the holy terrors on the Un-American Activities Committee, which exposed Alger Hiss and put the whole generation of New Deal liberals on trial. After Mr. Truman's surprise victory in 1948, the committee was purged of a couple of Democratic heretics, including Hebert, the rules being changed to make legal training a condition of membership.

Journalism is just as good a background as law is for tracking down miscreants, so Hebert took his talents to the Armed Services Committee. He became chairman of the Subcommittee for Special Investigations of the Defense Department. It is here that Hebert did his best work as a Congressman and which now entitles him to become a challenger for the title of Representative of the Year.

But Hebert went far beyond the canned hamburger phase of military correction. He perceived some years ago that there is a profound morality at stake in the highly complex relationship of high-ranking officers and Big Business. This is something peculiar to the American system. We have no officer class. Men go in and out of uniform. They retire on small incomes with a goodly life expectancy. They have much knowledge and many friends both at the Pentagon and in the matts of industry.

Glaring Temptations

The situation poses some glaring temptations in conflict of interest; yet it demands a sympathetic acceptance of national mores. Above all, however, Congress has the duty to see that the Army, Navy, Air Force and Marines get the very best weapons, at the most economical cost, as soon as possible after the procurement orders.

It takes true legislative prescience, patience and skill in a Congressional chairman to select his subjects, question his witnesses and eventually bring forth a pertinent testimony that can be translated into law.

Air Academy Tries for New Type of Officers

By BOB CONSIDINE

NEW YORK — West Point developed a type of man over the years, and so did the Naval Academy. You can spot them, sense them. But the Air Force Academy is trying to avoid a stereotype fly-guy, the man who is doing a lot of the shaping of our future air officers told us today.

He is Maj. Gen. William Sebastian Stone, a big, good-looking Missourian who got himself moved to the old Army Air Corps just as soon as he graduated from West Point. Gen. Stone is superintendent of the newest and most remarkable of the nation's service schools.

"We're out to develop the individual, an all-around man who can handle himself anywhere in the world and eventually in space," he said. "When he comes to us we give him more liberties than the other academies. We've dispensed with a lot of the 'sit-up straight - and - go - to - bed - without - dinner' discipline. That smacks too much of Charles Dickens."

"We divide our curriculum evenly between the sciences and the humanities. West Point's ratio is about 60-40 in favor of the science. Navy's about 70-30. We want a man who'll not only know his business but also know his way around a conference table. He may be called upon to serve almost anywhere in the world, we're so scattered. He must know the languages, customs, mores of peoples, must have made a study not only of the enemy but of his allies. You just can't get that kind of man out of science courses."

Got More Dates

The Air Force Academy delegation sent to Mexico City last year for Mexican Independence Day (West Point and Annapolis sent similar delegations) differed from the others in two respects:

(1) every air academy man spoke Spanish, and (2) got more and better dates.

The Air Academy was the first of the major service schools to introduce "enrichment" courses. An undergrad who excels in math may take two years of it in one year, leaving him free to take a year of anything else he desires—including painting. If he has previous college training, the academy will recognize his credits, relieve him of repeating those courses, and offer him "enrichment." If he feels he has a subject made, he can take an exam which ordinarily he would not have to face until the end of a semester, and if he passes it—he's done with that and on with "enrichment."

Sixty per cent of the 2,200 members of the Air Academy's wing now are taking courses over and beyond what would seem to many U.S. collegians already a back-breaking load. To graduate, one must have 135 credits, 144 of them strictly academic, the rest in physical education, military training, etc. The man who gets through the mill is granted a bachelor of science degree, navigator's wings, and a second lieutenantcy in the regular Air Force. M.I.T. requires 145 credits for a B.S., most schools around 125 for a B.A.

Probably never in the history of education in the U.S. or elsewhere has a major academy of learning come farther quicker. For the past three years it has been rated second scholastically in the 187-college Graduate Record Examination. In post-grad work its people have shone at Oxford, Princeton, M.I.T., and Cal Tech.

In fact, the future leaders of the Air Force and of limitless space are taught almost everything at the Air Force Academy except how to fly. Congress never got around to buying them an airstrip.

Other Editors

(Muncie Star)

Bishop Richard C. Raines, head of the Indiana Methodist Church, has outlined in courageous terms the threat of eventual government domination in the religious life of America. He did this when he told the National Conference on Church and State that there is a "disintegrating wall between church and state" in this country.

He pointed to the fact that all churches, Protestant, Catholic and Jewish, have to varying degrees accepted government "payola." Americans now understand that this term is used to define either money or services which will influence the actions or opinions of some other person. Bishop Raines has said that the churches of America cannot accept government money without being influenced and, finally, directed by some branch of government.

He has called for a series of conferences among the major religious faiths to stop this erosion of the wall which should exist between government and religious belief. Perhaps this is the best method to approach the problem.

The method is not nearly so important as the principle which American churches should affirm once more. All churches should once again accept the spirit of that part of the Bill of Rights which says "Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof." This part of the Constitution has been twisted by the churches, by various levels of government and by the courts of the United States.

All religious faiths should join hands in putting back together the wall between church and state. Bishop Raines said this wall has been pulled down bit by bit. Perhaps the dividing wall will have to be replaced stone by stone, but the churches should put their hands to the task.

Such a decision would mean the end of all federal and state participation in a variety of church activities, such as schools and hospitals. To some this will seem to be a harsh choice.

Yet the alternative is no less harsh. Quite rightly, Bishop Raines has predicted the future domination of the church by the state in the interest of some government policy. This can happen. It has happened, and history is cluttered with the sorry sight of religions which ceased to give men spiritual guidance and offered instead political direction.

The choice in the matter for the churches of America should not be difficult. Every church permits either belief or disbelief, nor is there any prospect of a shuttlebus running in the hereafter between salvation and perdition.

American religious organizations cannot shuttle between the world of the spirit and the world of politics. They must choose one or the other. Bishop Raines has pointed the way to the right decision.

Now You Know

By the end of the First World War three quarters of the world's population was at war with Germany and its allies.

Remember When . . .

AUGUST 4, 1951

A plea for a tax reduction by the Palm Springs Civic League, before the County Board of Supervisors, was denied. The League presented the Board with eleven points of reduction, one was withdrawn, nine were denied, and one was given approval.

The city's abatement suit of the Sunset House, was withdrawn by City Attorney Roy Colegate, to give the Riverside Superior Court a chance to order it completed.

AUGUST 4, 1941

Scores of Palm Springs young men started enlisting in the armed forces. Buster Crumpton started training as a Army pilot; Roger Manwaring enlisted in the U. S. Navy, and Glenwood Tomkins started his Navy training.

Redlands passed a law which prohibited the wearing of shorts on the street by women. The law was issued because, according to the chief, "too many women have appeared on the street to casually attired."

AUGUST 4, 1931

The Agua Caliente Indians were continuing their studies into the building of a mineral springs bath house on their natural springs at Indian Avenue and Tahquitz Drive.

PS Postmaster Blasts Criticism Of Postal Service

By KEN REICH
Sun Staff Writer

"I've been here through many different Administrations. Each time a new one comes in there is a big hue and cry about the post office. Then nothing is done. But I say the Post Office Department is the most, efficiently, economically run of all government departments."

In these words Palm Springs Postmaster Merritt Williams took strong exception with the conclusions reached by Pulitzer Prize Winner Edward Mcwery in a series of seven syndicated articles just run in the Desert Sun.

"Why they compare us with foreign services is beyond me," Williams said. "If they are going to, they ought to compare costs." Costs in Canada, Britain, and other countries, are much lower than the United States, according to the Postmaster.

And he lashed into those who say the chronic post office deficit is due mainly to inefficiency and sheer waste. "They try to eliminate waste. It's a penny - pinching department when it comes to that," Williams said.

The answer to the annual deficit, currently running over $800,000, is a raise in the postal rates, the Postmaster believes.

"We can't get Congress to raise rates and that is necessary to make this a going concern," Williams stated. "The service people get from the Post Office Department is up to them. They, through their representatives, don't want to pay for it."

Answering some local criticism of the Palm Springs office, Williams emphasized that every effort is being made to be cooperative and serve the public as much as possible.

He said instances of service failures should be reported. "Nine times out of ten we can tell what the mistake was. We get 100,000 pieces of mail through here a day. But if we make a mistake on one-tenth of one per cent, it makes us look bad."

"People don't tell us when they are lucky and get a misaddressed letter. We never hear about the good things," the Postmaster stated.

As far as postal rates go, Williams pointed out that Canada has charged 5 cents for regular mail for years. People here expect a 4 cent stamp to "pay for two or three deliveries a day," he stated.

The Postmaster, who has been with the service here for 33 years, seven of which have been as Postmaster, directs a local staff of 72 employees.

They operate the main post office facility at 849 N. Palm Canyon Drive, a contract sub-station at 17 The Plaza, and another contract office at 940 S. Palm Canyon Drive.

From 1927, when the Postmaster began service with the local office, it has grown from a staff of two employees taking in an annual total of $5,971 in receipts to the present staff and a receipt total for 1960 of $404,514. Home deliveries began in 1941.

Williams is not reticent about conceding the existence of local problems.

"We have big problems locally," he said. "One of the biggest is our labor problem. Our turnover in manpower runs as high as 34 per cent. This is due to the fact that Palm Springs is a resort town, and much of our labor supply force might be termed migratory. Some of the turnover is due to a lower prevailing wage for postal workers than for comparable jobs in private industry. Also, we have no problem with the quantity of our labor supply, but often the quality leaves much to be desired."

Another long-time problem, lack of sufficient vehicles for delivery purposes, was recently resolved with the arrival of three new trucks, bringing the office's total to 14 government-owned vehicles in use and 5 more under contract use.

To boxholder's complaints that they are receiving mail addressed to people who haven't been assigned the box for more than a year, Williams replied that this results from the failure of individuals to report a change of address when they relinquish their box.

"Since we have no forwarding address, our clerks have no alternative other than to place mail in the box to which it is addressed. We wish this were not so. It places an added burden upon our clerks."

The Postmaster believes the Palm Springs office "is one of the hardest in the United States to operate." This is so because of the great fluctuation of activity between summer and winter. From a low three week receipt total of $15,282 in the middle of the summer last year, receipts rose to a non-Christmas period high of $39,769 in a three week period in January.

"I feel we're outgrowing the new building" (completed in 1957), Williams said. Six to eight months ago he reports he requested a review of present postal facilities and recommended another permanent postal facility in another part of town.

However, the Post Office Department turned him down. Congressmen turned him down. Congressmen turned him down.

In the surrounding area Williams reported that Rancho Mirage and Cathedral City are slated for new facilities soon. He cited the White-water Post Office as a good example of an inadequate facility, saying conditions there were so bad that the roof of the current building "blew off in the last rain-storm."

28th Grid Classic Tonight

Pro Kings Face Youth And Weather

CHICAGO (UPI) — One of the best College All-Star squads in years will try to upset the National Football League champion Philadelphia Eagles tonight before some 75,000 fans in the 78th annual contest between the pro titans and the year's prize collegians.

Weather forecasters anticipated a hot humid night, with the temperature in the 80s, perhaps to give the deeper and younger college squad, coached by Otto Graham for the fourth straight season, an edge.

Graham's teams won over the Detroit Lions in his first appearance as mentor of the college kids, and lost the last two years to the Baltimore Colts. Overall, the All-Stars have won eight games, the pros 17, and two have been tied.

Pros Favored

The Eagles, who rang up a record of 11 wins and two defeats last year, were 9½ point favorites for the match, although two major factors in last year's victory string were missing, quarterback Norm Van Brocklin and coach Buck Shaw.

Van Brocklin retired to become coach of the Minnesota Vikings and Shaw yielded to one of his assistants, Nick Skorich.

Graham was optimistic about the outcome of the game, praising the quality of the 50 players on his roster, even though he believed that lack of experience could hurt his team.

"I'd like to take this squad into the league season," he said, "and after five or six games, it would be the equal of anybody."

It was anticipated that the All-Stars would rely on the passing of Norm Snead, Wake Forest; Bill Kilmer, UCLA, and Tom Matte, Ohio State. All three have worked well in drills, and Graham has found some standout receivers, notably Aaron Thomas, Oregon State; Mike Ditka, Pittsburgh; Lynn Gregory, SMU; Bob Crespino, Mississippi; Pervis Atkins, New Mexico State, and Joe Bellino, Navy.

The All-Stars' ground game has not been impressive, even though such "horses" as Art Baker, Syracuse, and Bill Brown, Illinois, have stood out.

Haddix Leads Bucs In Cards' Disaster

Christmas came two years and two months too late for little Harvey Haddix of the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Haddix, you'll recall, pitched 12 perfect innings against the Milwaukee Braves on May 26, 1959, but his teammates couldn't score a single run for him. The Braves finally ended the spell with a run in the 13th for a 1-0 victory and baseball's best pitched game wound up in just so much exercise for Haddix.

Thursday night, however, base runners were scurrying around the bases so fast and so often at St. Louis that even Harvey had trouble keeping track of them as

Canada Drought Brings 'Moderate' Bird Decreases

RENO, Nev. (UPI)—Western hunters may expect a "moderate" 15 to 20 per cent decline in waterfowl population this fall, a U.S. Fish and Wildlife Services spokesman said today.

The official, John Chatten, told members of the eight-state Pacific Flyway Council small increases in the number of birds breeding in the Alaskan and Canadian area will be offset by a decrease in the number of birds hatched in the last two months.

He said most of the decrease is in duck population. Geese are increasing in the Pacific Flyway and will have the biggest population in 15 years by fall, he said. Chatten said there were many more birds nesting in Alberta, Yukon and the Northwest Territories and Alaska. However, he warned many of these birds are from the Central and Pacific Flyways — displaced because of drought in Canada's "prairie provinces"—and their broods are not expected to travel south along the coastal route.

Chatten said figures compiled from last year's hunting season showed the total waterfowl killed climbed seven per cent to about 2.6 million birds. All of the increase was in California, Washington, Oregon, Nevada, Idaho, Utah and Arizona all reported lesser kills.

Venturi, Lema Lead In Eastern

BALTIMORE (UPI)—San Francisco's double-barrelled entry of Ken Venturi and Tony Lema paced the field into the second round of the Eastern Open golf tournament today.

But you can't convince Baltimore golf fans that the eventual winner will be anyone except Gene Littler, the sweet swinger from Singing Hills, Calif.

Littler, who led from start to finish to win this event here last year, could do no better than a fifth-place 70 Thursday. But this has not discouraged his followers.

In fact, the manner in which Gene performed in the opening round was convincing that he can do no wrong on this 6,800-yard municipal Pine Ridge layout.

Venturi and Lema, a couple of par-putting buddies from the San Francisco Bay area, presented a dark outlook for Littler's chances to repeat when they posted four-under-par 68's.

Littler, who did not have a chance to play a single practice hole, staggered around the front nine in two-over-par 38. He said: "It must have been the worst round I've ever played."

However, his fans refused to give up and Littler rewarded their confidence by firing four straight birdies, starting at the twelfth hole. This allowed him to close the gap to two strokes on the leaders.

8-Count Vetoed By Utah In Title Bout Saturday

OGDEN, Utah (UPI)—Ned Winder, chairman of the Utah State Athletic Commission, announced today there will be no compulsory eight-count in case of a knockdown during Saturday night's Gene Fullmer-Florentino Fernandez middleweight title fight.

Winder said the commission had voted to waive the compulsory eight-count rule for this nationally televised 15-round outdoor bout at Ogden's Municipal Stadium.

The action was taken, he explained, despite the precedent set by the Miami Beach commission before the third Floyd Patterson-Ingemar Johansson heavyweight championship contest last March 13.

In other words, the Utah commission is not favoring Fullmer, the Utah strongboy, although he is risking his half of the 160-pound crown against Cuba's Fernandez, perhaps the most dangerous puncher he ever faced.

Can Waive Rule

All state or city commissions that are members of the National Boxing Association have a safety rule that requires the referee to give a floored boxer an eight-count before his opponent can go after him again. But each commission can waive that rule before a title bout if it so desires. They generally waive it.

However, the Miami Beach commission did not waive the rule before the Patterson-Johansson "rubber match" last March; and many boxing men believe that the two eight-counts Patterson received after his two knockdowns in the first round may have saved his title.

Chairman Winder of Salt Lake City stressed today that the Utah commission voted secretly "some time ago" to waive the rule for Saturday's fight before either Fullmer or Fernandez could have asked them not to.

Winder added that eight-ounce gloves will be used for the bout and that the scoring by a referee and two judges will be on a 10-point-must basis.

Sports in Brief

WATERLOO, Iowa (UPI) — A veteran professional who has won five championships this year and another professional seeking her first title carried one-stroke leads into the second round of the Waterloo Women's Open golf tournament today.

Mickey Wright, 26, Dallas, Tex., whose victories this year include the Women's National Open, and Katy Whitworth, 21, Jal, N. M., tied for medalist honors Thursday with 3-under-par 69's.

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Milwaukee's ageless Warren Spahn seeks the 29th victory of his career tonight against San Francisco's Mike McCormick and Alvin Dark's do it yourself system, or whatever is left of it.

LOS ANGELES—Orlando de la Fuente, 145, Los Angeles, outpointed Ralph Moore, 139, Los Angeles (10).

DALLAS, Tex. — Curtis Cokes, 147, Dallas, outpointed Luis Rodriguez, 145, Cuba (10).

LONG BEACH (UPI) — The Colt League southern California regional playoffs begin at 6:30 tonight at Blair Field.

Competing teams are El Cajon, Northridge, San Bernardino and Rancho (the Baldwin Park - Arcadia area). The winner of the four-day tourney will meet the champion of the Pacific Northwest.

Sands, Colony Sweep Twin Bill

Massey Rock and Sand socked the Telephone Company 13-3 and the Mexican Colony turned back Coachella Valley Savings and Loan 8-4 in two windswept Desert Softball League games last night.

In the first contest, Massey broke open a tight game in the fourth inning with a three run rally on hits by Richard Luzano and Sal Valdivia. They went on to score three more times in the fifth, four times in the sixth, and once in the seventh.

Luzano, Ben Rios, Robert Rios, and Jim Torres all hit home runs off losing pitcher Jim Bigley. Dick Kelly's triple was the longest hit of the night for the Phonemen. Valdivia took the win on the mound, allowing eight hits while striking out no one and walking no one. In the nightcap Joe Luzano's homerun and Oscar Prieto's triple led the Mexican Colony hitting attack. The Colony scored three times in the second, twice in the fifth, and three times in the sixth.

Joe Lewis paced the Coachella Valley attack getting a double and a homerun in three times at bat.

Frank Prieto took the win and Jim Davis the loss.
